LATEST INTELLIGENCE

By Telegraph to the New-York Daily Times.

THE YELLOW FEVER IN VIRGINIA.

BALTIMORE, Saturday, Sept. 8.

The Norfolk boat this morning brings a more favorable account from Norfolk,—there having been only 23 deaths on Thursday, while the new cases were more easily managed. Mr. BARNS, member elect to the Legislature, was amongst the dead.

We have no record of the number of deaths on Friday, but the rumor was that there had been about 20.

Portsmouth letters say there are about 15 deaths there daily.

Dr. MORRIS writes that there are but two physicians from North of Norfolk who are not down with the fever, and six of these physicians are dangerously ill at the Naval Hospital. Dr. MARSHALL, of Baltimore, was dying.

Our latest intelligence from Norfolk, and Richmond, represents that there is a slight abatement of the disease.

Over $4,000 was subscribed in this city to-day for the relief of the sufferers, making a total of nearly $20,000.

A boat was sent down to night heavily laden with provisions, also having on board one hundred and thirteen coffins.

RELIEF MEETING IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, Sept. 8.

A public meeting was held here this afternoon to take measures for the relief of the sufferers at Norfolk and Portsmouth. The Mayor of the city was elected Chairman, and a Relief Committee was appointed, to continue till the fever disappears. A resolution was adopted stating an appropriation of $5,000 by the City Councils would meet the approbation of our citizens. It is the impression that it will be voted next Monday.

RELIEF FROM BOSTON.

BOSTON, Saturday, Sept. 8.

Eighteen hundred dollars was remitted to-day to Baltimore for the relief of the Norfolk and Portsmouth sufferers, making twenty-eight hundred dollars in all, collected by individual effort. The Committee appointed yesterday are now active, and a larger sum will probably be forwarded early next week.

THE LATEST.—SAD ACCOUNTS.

BALTIMORE, Sunday, Sept. 9.

The Norfolk boat, arrived here to-day, brings the sad tidings that there is no abatement of the yellow fever, and that the small pox has also broken out in Norfolk, of which there were ten cases on Saturday.

Two nurses from this city are dead. Dr. BYANT, of Philadelphia, is dying. The fever is spreading to the adjoining country.

At Norfolk, on Friday, there were forty deaths from yellow fever; and on Saturday, up to noon, there had been twenty five deaths.

At Portsmouth, on Friday, there were 22 deaths and 30 new cases. On Saturday, up to noon, there had been 15 deaths. Dr. MORRIS, of this city, was sick. Dr. MARSHALL was dying.

Seventy-six tents were taken down from here on Friday to Norfolk, under the direction of the Mayor and Councils of this city, which were pitched on the site of Old Point—a beautiful and healthy site. The American flag was raised, and it was expected a steamboat load of refugees would land there this morning.

To-morrow a steamer will take down a load of provisions for the camp. A small supply was taken down on Saturday.

Yellow Fever at New-Orleans.

NEW-ORLEANS, Friday, Sept. 7.

The Yellow Fever is sensibly abating in this city, and the week's returns will doubtless show a gratifying decrease in the number of deaths.

Another Serious Accident on the Camden and Amboy Railroad.

BURLINGTON, N. J., Saturday, Sept. 8.

Another serious accident, attended with loss of life, occurred on the Camden and Amboy Railroad this afternoon. The engine of the 2 o'clock train, when near Beverly, was thrown from the track by the breaking of an axle attached to the forward truck, and reduced a complete wreck, and following after it was a baggage and one passenger car.

JOHN HOLLAND, the engineer, was so badly injured that amputation of one of his limbs became necessary, but he died shortly after the operation had been performed. He lived at Camden, and leaves a family.

LAWRENCE THORNE, a fireman, was seriously injured, but not considered fatally.

None of the passengers were hurt.

The accident occurred at 2½ P. M., and was occasioned by a flaw in the axle next to the wheel. An examination showed the axle to have been sound about an inch and a half in a diameter of five inches. Soon after the accident occurred, the engineer asked, "What's broke?" On being told "the axle," he replied, "I thought so." Such a remark leads to the inference that he was aware at the dépôt of the flaw, and, notwithstanding, recklessly perilled the lives of the passengers as well as his own. Great excitement existed among the passengers in regard to the disaster, and the feelings of the people here are again harrowed up by the repetition of a fatal accident so near them. Drs. DAY and BEVERLEY performed the operation on the engineer. The train was delayed four hours.

The accident occurred to the 2 o'clock train from Philadelphia for New-York.

More Troubles in Africa between the British and the Natives.

BOSTON, Saturday, Sept. 8.

By the brig Monte Cristo, arrived here this morning, we have news from the Coast of Africa to the 24 of August.

On the 15th July a party from Bathurst, on British Government duty, were fired into near the headquarters of the Mandingo tribe. On the 16th the Governor organized a force of 200 troops, and proceeded to inquire into the facts. On his way he was ambushed and fired into by the Mandingoes. The Governor and two officers were wounded, together with 20 native troops killed and 40 wounded. Since then a body of 500 native friend troops have been harrassing the Mandingoes, and the assistance of some French artillery having been obtained from Gires, a number of troops were to proceed, on Aug. 2, from Bathurst, to chastise the Mandingoes. A speedy termination of the affair was anticipated.

The Late Accident to the Stonington Steamboat Train—The Know-Nothings—Mortality, &c.

BOSTON, Saturday, Sept. 8.

Mr. LAWRENCESON, United States Mail Agent, injured by the late accident to the Stonington steamboat train, died to-day. Mr. BENJAMIN SIMMONS, who had both his legs broken by the same accident, died yesterday, at North Kingston, R. I.

General CASS and his daughter are here, and they are stopping at the Winthrop House.

The Know-Nothing lodges in Boston and vicinity are active, and there are strong indications of a straight out American Convention for the nomination of State officers.

The deaths in this city for the week ending to-day have been 83, a decrease of seven from last week.

Vermont State Election.

BOSTON, Saturday, Sept. 8.

Two hundred and four towns in Vermont have been heard from, which give SEWAL, (Republican,) 23,[illegible]; CHASE, (Democrat,) 11,[illegible]; scattering, 4,000. Of the Representatives elected so far as heard from, 48 are Whig and Republican, 26 Democratic, and 31 Know-Nothing.

Republican Movement in Massachusetts.

SPRINGFIELD, Sunday, Sept. 9.

Several hundred citizens of Springfield, composed of all the old parties, assembled at Hampden Hall on Saturday night to appoint Delegates to the Republican State Convention at Worcester on the 26th inst. Harmony and enthusiasm prevailed. Gerrit Smith presided, and eloquent speeches in behalf of unions against any more compromise with Slavery or any more Slave States were made by Mr. ELIOT, Wm. B. CALHOUN, OLIVER B. MORRIS, Dr. CHAPPIN, HENRY VOSE, RUFUS ELMER, GEO. WALKER and F. A. HARROW. Twenty five of our leading citizens were appointed Delegates and substitutes for the Nominating Convention, and between 200 and 300 were selected to attend the mass meeting at the same time.

Other towns in this State are responding to the calls for Union Conventions.

Suicide of Major Marbland.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, Sept. 8.

Major MATTHEW MARBLAND, formerly an eminent lawyer of Kentucky, and late a Clerk in the Quartermaster General's office in this city, committed suicide on Sunday last, as is supposed, from letters found to-day in his secretary. Old age and infirmity are the only reasons assigned. His family relations were of the most affectionate character. In a letter he left for his family he says: "My mind is fully made up, with all the affection I have for my family, and I yield to no man in the pride that I entertain; yet for their future good I choose to depart." His body has not yet been found.

From Washington—Mr. Buchanan's Detention in London.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Sept. 9.

The state of negotiations at the Court of St. James, are such that the public interest will require the continuance of Mr. BUCHANAN longer in London, than he or his friends in this country anticipated. His connection with that mission will not therefore terminate at the time heretofore announced, namely, the 1st of October. It is presumed that his detention has reference to the Central American question.

Another Railroad Accident.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Sept. 9.

The train from Baltimore last night ran over a bull, near Annapolis Junction, and threw the train off the track. The mail, baggage, and smoking cars were smashed; the latter was full of passengers, but all miraculously escaped without the least injury. The passengers arrived here at 12 o'clock at night.

Horse Show at Providence.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Saturday, Sept. 8.

Maine Politics.

PORTLAND, Me., Sunday, Sept. 9.

A large meeting of our citizens was held last evening, at which a ticket was nominated for State Representatives, embracing Whigs and Democrats opposed to the present administration, but forming an organized combination against the Republican movement.

The Reported Election of Senator Atchison.

ST. LOUIS, (Mo.,) Saturday, Sept. 8.

The reported election of Senator ATCHISON to the United States Senate, from this State, by the New-York Tribune, is a glaring hoax, as it is well known that our Legislature does not meet, even, for several months to come.

The Southern Mail Difficulty Settled.

BALTIMORE, Saturday, Sept. 8.

The Postmaster General has settled the quarrel with the South Carolina Railroad Company, and a daily service by this route is ordered.

We have no mail South of Savannah this morning.

The Arkansas Gold Mines.

CHICAGO, Saturday, Sept. 8.

Two men have returned to Hannibal, Mo., who state that they found the supposed gold regions around the Arkansas River, but report the total failure of the expedition, and the lynching of the leader of the company, named FOCIA, by his unprincipled companions.

Destruction of a Cotton Factory by Fire.

The Weather in Boston.

The weather here to-day was most oppressively hot, with but little air stirring. At 1 o'clock this afternoon the thermometer stood at 90° in the shade.

Census of Chicago.

CHICAGO, (Ill.,) Saturday, Sept. 8.

The total population of Chicago, as by the census just taken and completed, is 80,028. In 1850, it was 28,000.

Arrival of the Knoxville at Savannah.

SAVANNAH, Saturday, Sept. 8,

The steamer Knoxville has arrived here, after a passage of sixty hours from New York, with all on board well.

Arrivals from the South.

The United States Mail steamship Southerner, J. GOVAN, Commander, in sixty-two hours from Charleston, with merchandise and passengers, arrived on Saturday. She exchanged signals with the Keystone State, from Philadelphia to Savannah, also with the Knoxville, hence for Savannah, on the 6th instant. The Southerner experienced N. E. gales throughout the whole passage.

The steamship Augusta, LYON, from Savannah Sept. 5, to SAMUEL L. MITCHELL, has also arrived.

From Curacoa.

By the arrival of the bark Venus, Capt. ATKINSON, from Curaçoa, Aug. 26, we have received the following information: There is no salt to be had at Curaçoa this year. The cholera had broken out at Laguyaira, and some fatal cases had occurred.

☞ The English bark Rainbow, loaded with coal for Havana, went ashore on Key Vaccors, Aug. 26. Crew all saved; vessel and cargo total loss. Brig Huntress, of Philadelphia, from San Juan, went ashore near the same place, same day. No lives lost. Vessel got off and brought into Key West.

Yellow Fever at Norfolk.

From the Savannah Georgian, Thursday.

Mr. LORYEA, a student of Dr. MICHEL of Charleston, arrived in our city last night in the eleven o'clock train, direct from Norfolk, and bringing the latest accounts of the epidemic in that afflicted city. He represents the ravages of the fever as beyond description. The people are panic struck, stores and banks are closed, business is suspended, and the fever is rapidly on the increase. There are now 1,000 cases on the sick-list. The epidemic makes no distinction between blacks and whites. The city is almost deserted, and families are dying for want of care and attention.

Dr. L. comes to our city on a special mission, in behalf of the Howard Association, for the purpose of procuring nurses. He brings a letter from Dr. RHAD to Mayor ANDERSON, urging that additional assistance be sent on immediately, if possible. This appeal comes home with peculiar force to our city, and we have no doubt that it will be promptly responded to. Dr. L. says that female negro nurses are most desired, though any assistance that can be rendered will meet cheerfully be accepted.

Such citizens of Savannah as are desirous of accepting this invitation, either on the part of themselves or their servants, are requested to report themselves during the day to the Mayor, or to Dr. L., in person, at the Marshal House. His time is limited, as he leaves this evening, with such force as he shall be able to collect, en route for Norfolk.

It will be gratifying to our readers to learn through Dr. L., that Dr. RHAD and his force are active and well, relieving upon Savannah and Georgia. They are reported to be very successful in the treatment of the fever.

Brutal Treatment of a Little Girl by her Step-Mother.

We have some particulars relating to a revolting act by a step-mother towards a little girl said to be her step-daughter, which occurred in Canton not some days ago. It is said the little girl committed some trivial act in disobedience to the orders of the woman, for which offence she was shamefully whipped, and then made to turn in clothes from the washing tub in same place, and in other ways to undergo much additional abuse; after which, the little girl was confined in a dark cellar from two to three days, during which time her whole subsistence was a mess of scraps of meat-grease. The brother of the child, a young man of respectable standing, upon hearing the circumstances, resolved immediately to the house and hearing once the cellar door, release his fellow and brutally-abused sister from her horrid imprisonment. Having taken her to a place of safety, he lost no time in procuring a raw-hide, with which he administered a well-deserved castigation to the unfeeling and soulless creature who has committed this diabolical outrage. We are told that it became necessary to summon a physician to cause the bruised welts raised upon the little girl's body by the whip of her unfeeling step-mother.—Lexington, Ill., Democrat.

NEW-YORK CITY.

CITY POLITICS.

The Republicans.

A meeting of the Central Republican Committee was held on Saturday evening at the Morser-street House. C. C. LEGAL presided, and LEWIS D. WATTS, of the Eleventh Ward, and WILLIAM PREY, of the Eighth Ward, acted as Secretaries. Delegates from eighteen Wards were in attendance. Two delegations appearing from the Eleventh Ward, the subject was referred to a Committee on Credentials, with instructions to report at the next meeting. After the appointment of various Committees, the meeting adjourned to Tuesday evening next.

After the Leadership.

A meeting was held in Astor-place on Saturday evening to form an organization to contest the palm of leadership with the Republican General Committee recently formed in this City. Those in attendance, numbering about fifteen persons, were composed of individuals favoring the appointment of Delegates by the so-called "County Convention" which met at Free Masons' Hall on the evening of the 1st, and well-known members of the "dark lantern" oligarchy. A resolution pledging each person present to secrecy was adopted almost unanimously. After speeches by Dr. SOUTHWORTH, J. H. BUELLESON and others, a Committee of five was appointed to devise some means of placing this new secret organization at the head of the Republican movement in this City.

Female Normal School.

The first session of the third annual term of this school, under the care of the Board of Education, was held on Saturday last.

The number of junior teachers present was 530—the total number on the book of the school being 675 at the present time. This school, under the care of LEONARD HAZELTINE, Esq., holds a session of five hours on Saturdays, for about ten months in each year. The President of the Board of Education, W. H. NEILSON, was present on Saturday, according to his usual practice. The appearance of the school, as assembled in the large room at the top of the Hall of the Board of Education—where the school is held—is quite imposing. If any one is skeptical as to the high character of our school system, we would advise him to visit the Normal School when it is assembled at 9 o'clock A. M. any Saturday, when perhaps an increase of faith may be obtained.

There are eight gentlemen and five ladies connected with the faculty of this school, under Mr. HAZELTINE. The Male Normal School holds its sessions on Wednesday and Friday afternoons of each week, from 4 to 7 o'clock. Dr. DAVID PATTERSON is its Principal. The Colored Normal School is under the charge of JOHN PATTERSON, and, like the others, under the care of the Board of Education.

Strip to It.

One would suppose it late in the day for newspapers to be urging good people to take their clothes off before going to bathe. But it seems otherwise. A gentleman took a bath yesterday at the Division-street ferry wharf (Williamsburg) with even his best coat on. It is more decent indeed than such naked bathing as is practiced along the two river sides of the City by hosts of boys every warm day, and they say that wearing woollen stockings in salt water gives them a gloss. But one feels so "bedraggled" on coming out with his duds clinging close to his skin and his hat raining brine, and there is such opportunity to take cold before reaching home, that we must continue to beg the public to strip always before jumping.

Besides the ferries are no proper place to bathe in—better go to the Battery where there are no policemen, or near the large steamboat landings were there are policemen apparently to protect the clothes of the swimmers. There it is comparatively safe. But at the ferry-bridges one stands a capital chance of getting his brains knocked out—that is provided it can be shown that he has any brains—who jumps for a ferry boat after the chains are up and she's moving off.

"Rock Agen."

Almost everybody has come back to town from his Summer seasoning—his face and hands as brown as a berry—his wife in a stew to learn what new fashions have come up in her absence—whether they wear black feathers in Fall bonnets, and whether they trim mantillas with as wide a gimp and as deep a fringe as they did in July—his baby fat as a porpoise, and with a tint of carmine on each cheek and a "mud-color" on its dumpy arms. September gives every such returning citizen a warm welcome.

We generally expect, when all the stragglers get home, for a "Heated term" to set in with a vigor worthy of early Summer, and so desperately as to frighten back all the sensitive to their deserted Summer quarters. Then an easterly storm sets in that gives all their little ones the snuffles, and all the old ones the rheumatism, and then they come hobbling and sneezing back to town to lay in their Winter coal in a flurry.

We try to be thankful for whatever weather comes, but if—now that September is a third gone—Fall should gently insinuate itself and take possession we shall be resigned.

American Bible Society.

The stated meeting of the Managers of the Bible Society was held on the 6th inst., Hon. LUTHER BRADISH in the chair.

Seven new auxiliaries were recognized; of which two were in Arkansas, and one in each of the States of South Carolina, Texas, Illinois, California, and one in Oregon Territory.

Letters were received from Rev. Mr. PREY, Fuh Chau, China, in regard to the work in that country, and the advantage of publishing the Scriptures in the colloquial dialect; from Rev. Mr. DOTY, at the Amoy Mission, stating the unusual demand for the Scriptures there, and requesting funds for their publication; from Rev. Dr. DURBIN, of the Methodist Missionary Society, asking funds to purchase Bibles for Sweden.

Some valuable additions were made to the Library, among which were Annotations on the books of the Old and New Testaments, 1657.

Grants were made of a pulpit Bible for the State Prison at Sing Sing, and for a Sabbath School at West Point; to poor Bible Societies in the West, with several others of smaller amount, in different languages, including twelve volumes for the Blind.

They need to be Strong.

While passing up Broadway early on Saturday evening we were witness to a scene of brutality of a very outrageous character. A man was knocked down by two fellows larger than himself and kicked until he was entirely helpless. He lay struggling in the street with his face cut and bruised horribly. The cause for this outrageous assault, as stated, was that the man had thrown a brick at the head of one of the assailants. We remained more than twenty minutes, and there assembled a crowd, yet no policeman was to be seen, although the outrage was perpetrated at the corner of Grand-street and Broadway. The rascals walked quietly away down Broadway. What are we coming to if such outrages can be perpetrated unnoticed in our great thoroughfares in open day, and within two or three blocks of two station-houses?

The Sheriff After Bridge.

Mr. DRAKE informs us that the Sheriff was chasing BRIDGE all day Friday to get the costs out of him for the fun he had prevaricating and trying to jobber the DAILY TIMES for simply saying that he was a nuisance. On Saturday Bridge caused the Sheriff and security overtaking him, and held over the amount of the costs. So ends that chapter.

But will the court let off, with the exposure of the Common Councilmen Committee, from the bill of heavy costs incurred by the Mooney Investigating Committee? Will the City pay it? and will the Comptroller hand out the change.

Of Great Importance.

Mr. STEPHEN H. BRANCH sends us a denial of the truth of what Mr. MCKELLAR said under oath "that he had heard"—so we; that Mr. B. obtained a piece of the "Henry Clay Cloth." The latter end of the communication reads as follows:

I therefore solemnly declare before the Great Disposer of Events, that I did not have the cloth in question, and that all I know about it is, what I heard from responsible witnesses at preceding investigations of the Committee, that some interested measures exists that pall of the great Kentuckian, and were it on their daily curb; and now my step-child, in order to divert the public attention and execration from themselves. Could HENRY CLAY have opened his unworthy eyes upon them as they outraged his silent form, one glance would have sentence the vulgarer to the cerulean savior to rise. Respectfully, STEPHEN H. BRANCH.

City Mortality.

The City still continues in remarkably good good health. Only 501 deaths occurred here last week which is a decrease of 47 on the mortality of the previous week. Of the deceased, 455 were born in the United States; 68 in Ireland; 20 in Germany.

☞ A member of the bar intends to commence proceedings in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of the State of New-York, against the Camden and Amboy Railroad Company, on behalf of a lady and a gentleman who were injured—not killed—in the recent catastrophe. The plaintiffs are, or claim to be, citizens of this State, and, as such, have the right to sue in the Federal Courts, citizens of any other State in the Union for injuries received.

☞ A mass meeting of colored citizens will be held at Merritt's Hall, No. 165 Spring street, on Monday evening, September 10, to hear the report of the Delegates of the Troy Convention. Mr. SYLVESTER MYERS, of Albany, and others will address the meeting, and a county organization will be formed.

☞ Mr. SILVESTER S. SOUTHWORTH assumed yesterday the position of co-editor and proprietor of the Sunday Mercury. Bowing, he tells why he left the Atlas—it was coming to abuse Mayor WOOD, Comptroller FLAGG, and President PIERCE, all whom Mr. S. rather admires.

☞ The great excursion of Sunday School Teachers, from Boston and vicinity, is to take place on the 24th and 25th of the present month. The arrangements are in the hands of such men as Gen. BANCS and Lieut. Governor GARDNER.

☞ Most of the large private schools of the City open their terms to-day. There are a great many of them, and the scholars in attendance are very numerous.

☞ The City swarms with strangers—the hotels are unusually full.

☞ MOSES Y. BEACH, Esq., leaves soon for Europe.

The Prohibitory Law.

The number of arrests for intoxication for the eight and forty hours preceding our going to press, was forty:

SATURDAY.
At the Tombs, before Justice Welsh	18
At Jefferson Market, before Justice Dawson	12
At Essex Market, before Justice Wood	10
Total	40
SUNDAY.
At the Tombs, before Justice Welsh	15
At Jefferson Market, before Justice Feeney	9
At Essex Market, before Justice Brennan	11
Total, for forty-eight hours	35

But the actual arrests for intoxication is a poor criterion whereby to judge of the extent to which rum drinking; there were yesterday arrests made and disposed of, of parties committing assault and battery, and guilty of other breaches of the peace, as follows:

At the Tombs, before Justice Welsh	22
At Jefferson Market, before Justice Feeney	27
At Essex Market, before Justice Brennan	16
Total	75

Which numbers, added to the arrests direct for intoxication, makes a total of arrests yesterday, made under the new law, of 150 persons. What is the City coming to?

LONG ISLAND.

Spiritualistic Sunday in Brooklyn.

The Spiritualists of Brooklyn hold their Sunday circles, or, as they may be called, Walpurgis Sabbaths, in the Lyceum Building, in Washington-street. The Sunday morning circles are devoted mainly to manifestations of various kinds, and the afternoon and evening meetings are more particularly devoted to trance lectures. Understanding that there were to be some unusually interesting exhibitions at the morning circle, when some diagrams of the present and former appearance of the spiritual regions would be exhibited, we had the curiosity to attend the meeting, for it would be something to boast of to have had even a diagramatic view of the abodes of the Blest. But in this particular we were disappointed; for some cause or other, which was not explained, the diagrams were not exhibited.

The meeting was held in the Museum of the Lyceum, and the stuffed alligators, petrified snakes and Indian idols, which were ranged round the room in glass cases, rather helped to impart a feeling of awe as we entered the charmed circle. The hour of admission was passed when we turned the handle of the door—for the Spiritualists do not like to be disturbed in their incantations after the spells begin to work—but, we were were admitted as a favor, and, gliding quietly into the silent and mysterious apartment, we took a seat a little distance from the spiritual circle, so that we might be out of reach of the witch element. At a round walnut table in the centre of the room sat nine or ten persons of both sexes, some quite young, and some with silvery locks; they were silently solemn, with their hands crossed upon the table as if waiting for some manifestations from the table, though they waited in vain, for the table was perfectly well-behaved during the whole sitting and never stirred a leg, nor gave a single knock. Sitting near the table were some dozen or so of men and women, and apart from the rest were a couple whose convulsions at first alarmed us. One of them was a tall, gaunt female, with a pale face, long skinny fingers, and sunken eyes. She was dressed in a light blue gauze gown with flounces, and kept singing her skin hands violently, as if to jerk something off from them. Her companion was a short man with long hair, a thick, bushy chestnut beard, high cheek bones, and small, sharp gray eyes; which, however, he kept closed nearly all the time. His body was a good deal convulsed, he sighed deeply, thumped upon his breast, clasped his hands over the top of his head, and occasionally thrust out his arms horizontally. These performances continued some minutes, when the gaunt lady in the blue gauze dress rose with her eyes shut, and, after meandering around the room awhile, during which she kept patting her hands together and making a variety of strange motions, she stopped behind the chair of one of the circle at the table, and commenced tapping her between the shoulders; a rather fat lady then alone and came to her assistance, and the two were engaged some minutes in patting the lady at the table, though no explanation was given with respect to it. Then the gaunt, in blue gauze, commenced an oration with her eyes shut, and her hands and arms quivering all the time in a convulsive manner. She was in a trenced condition, we believe, which might be a sufficient apology for her incoherent and nonsensical remarks. The only thing she stored which had anything like a tangible idea involved in it, was, that the mind could not receive the truth unless the body were fed through the system, from the mouth, tapping the top of the head, to the mouth, running her quivering fingers down the body to her feet. She said also that people might have an idea of ideas from another without speaking—a fact which there was no necessity of being conversant to know. When she sat down an old lady at the table remarked that while the gaunt was speaking, she had heard had an idea of something or other, we could not distinctly hear what, and had seen a change manifested by bulbs of light. After this there was some silence, and as the room was hot, a considerable rustling of fans, and the long lady and the gaunt lady seemed in a good deal convulsed. Some of the gaunt's friends in the circle evidently felt a little disconcerted, and the fat lady seemed at times (if music would but hasten) anxiously desirous of a change, and, indeed, that appeared to be a very prudent to the only unfavorable feature in the body. The evidently thought that a few hundred pounds of tobacco fresh might be taken on as ballast, by any means but anyone present who found it difficult to sit there in comfort.

The meeting was harassing, unless sound and sleep, when the lady in the blue dress commenced operations.

NEW-JERSEY.

Railroad Accident.

An accident occurred on Saturday on the New-Jersey Railroad, between Elizabethtown and Rahway, to the train which left Philadelphia for New-York at 7 o'clock A. M. Reports were going on at the point where the accident occurred, and the rails being mised there was a sudden jar which buried the baggage cars of the wreck and over the fifth class (rear) rode into an adjoining field. The cars were smashed, and the baggage scattered about. The passengers were greatly terrified by the occurrence, and for a while were much excited.

The New-Jersey Railroad.

Let it be remembered that the New-Jersey Railroad extends only from Jersey City to Amboy, and no company of this road can use the cars on this road, except the baggage, who accompany the cars through the entire route between New-York and Philadelphia, and these baggage are subject to the regulations of the road upon which they are employed, and may be discharged by either Company for violating any of its rules while within its jurisdiction.

Row in a Church.

A difficulty occurred on Friday evening in Jersey City, between men connected with Dan Rice's circus, and several men connected with the Police Department of Jersey City, in which some of the men got the worst of it. The case was brought up in the Justice's Court on Saturday, by Justice Pitney, presided with Recorder Gardner. Mr. O. F. Kinney, the Chief of Police, stated that this complaint had been initiated at the request of the police, who wished the truth developed as soon as that the blame may rest where it belongs. In the main, the disturbance of the circus, named MANAHAN, was struck incurable by Officer TRAVIS, who dealt him one or more blows upon his head. The statement of MANAHAN was severely upon Officer TRAVIS, and seemed him of striking the first assault. The statement of Officer TRAVIS, on the other hand, is to the effect that he was on duty on an officer, outside of the tent, and a difficulty arising between other officers not on duty and the disturbers, he went there and on the ground, free of charge, he undertook to stop it, when the disturbers assaulted him by kicking him in the stomach. He was then struck by another employé of the circus, and he said the man upon both of them. There will be a continuation of the case at 7 o'clock, this evening.

Quoits.

A match for $50 was played on Saturday, at BRADY'S Hudson City Hotel grounds, Bergen, Jersey vs. Hudson, and Jersey won in a canter. The players were Turner and Vanderbilt for Jersey, and Dening and Dickson for Hudson. Quoits 24 paces, 8 inches diameter. First game 21 pegs. Vanderbilt closed the game 21—21 up. Hudson won. Vanderbilt scored 11 and 21. Second game 21 pegs, 15 up. Hudson scored 10, 15, 15; Jersey, 18, 16, 15. Jersey, 15. Hudson, 14, 15, 15. Jersey, 15, 15, 15. Hudson, 14, 15, 15. Arrest of Liquor Sellers in West Hoboken.

Fifteen liquor sellers have been arrested for violating the State law with reference to the sale of liquor to-day, in West Hoboken. They appeared before Justice Finn on Thursday last, with Mr. E. V. WRIGHT as counsel. No witnesses being present, their cases were postponed to the 16th inst.

Delaware State Sunday School Convention.

The Bible Society of the State of Delaware met in Wilmington, on Thursday, the 6th inst. Judge HARE, of the U. S. District Court, and President of the Society, in the Chair. It was resolved to remodel the whole State with the Bible, and measures were adopted to accomplish that object. The mode is to have every dwelling visited by a person who is divinely, who will either sell the books at a price barely covering the original cost or dispose of them gratuitously. The Report was read by Judge HARE, and addresses delivered by Rev. G. [illegible], President of the American Sunday School Union, and Wm. WYNKOOP, of Philadelphia, and others.

Rose Mifflin to an American publisher's name and given, published by PARTRIDGE & BRITTAN, Philadelphia. It may be obtained at the library of a friend, with a [illegible] of [illegible], a [illegible] of poetry, and a [illegible] of [illegible]. There is a good deal of [illegible] in it, which is [illegible] [illegible] and is likely to [illegible] a great many readers.

There is, however, one consolation,—those who are partners in this condition are ruined of all danger; if it were announced that the boat must go to the bottom, they would consider it matter of rejoicing. No such announcement was made to us, though we afterwards learned that we were in some danger of meeting the calamity without the warning,—but we weathered the storm, and before 6 o'clock on Saturday morning were safely moored in the harbor of Quebec, and though we thought it a provoking pastime at the time, we find ourselves actually better for having been sea-sick.

It was a trip of rare enjoyment, but we cannot promise those who may resolve to take the same, the variety with which we were favored, for there has been neither a fog nor storm to delay or endanger the freliest vessel for many years before; but whatever storm there may be, there is little danger with the experience and skill of Capt. BIRARD, who has been twenty years on the river and met with no casualty; and whatever else may be exhausted, there is no end to his good nature, and no diminution of his polite attentions. In the opinion of all who have been, he is just the Captain for a trip up the Saguenay.

But delightful as it is, we advise none to go who have no love of adventure—who cannot abjure luxury for one week, and appreciate simplicity—who are not willing to leave art for a little while and revel with nature, and who do not admire above all things else, her glorious works!

AFFAIRS IN ITALY.

Critical Condition of Roman Affairs—Piedmont and Spain Excommunicated by the Pope—People Flogged in Naples for Political Opinion, &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

ROME, Friday, Aug. 10, 1855.

Since I last addressed you on the affairs of Italy the under-current of political agitation has considerably increased; to such an extent indeed, that the state of the Peninsula is now seriously occupying the attention of the French Government and the British House of Commons. To begin with Rome. MAZZINI has sent a number of his agents to the Roman States, provided with arms and money. They have landed at obscure points of the coast and are encamped here and there in parties of ten up to twenty persons. It is supposed they intend to liberate the political prisoners of 1849. The Roman Government has taken alarm, and addressed Austria and France, requesting those powers to send more troops into the Roman States. But there are two difficulties about doing so. In the first place Austria asks for money, which the public finance of the Vatican has not the means of supplying.

As regards France, that Power wants all her forces for the war with Russia. In fact, there are not more than 3,000 French now in Rome. Brigandage has increased to a frightful extent in and about the Eternal City. Travelers are robbed, and one French lady has been murdered. Misery meets one at every step; in fact, the country is bankrupt. Perhaps it can never be otherwise, with priests holding all temporal offices as well as ecclesiastical.

Amidst all this domestic trouble, the Pope is engaged in a spiritual war with Spain and Piedmont. You are aware that in both these countries the Governments have hit a hard blow at the Roman Catholic Church. Piedmont has suppressed the convents,—that is to say, such as were no longer used for education and public religion, but only a retreat for the indolent. The same events have taken place in Spain. Both are great European events, because they show that Constitutional Governments have the power, and exercise the same, in spiritual as well as temporal affairs. The Roman Church uses its old weapon of "excommunication:" but the day has gone by in Europe when even old women fear the damnation of priests of any creed. The Vatican publishes its "allocutions,"—rather long winded documents,—of which I send you the chief features. As regards the evil doings of Piedmont, the Church of St. Peter's says:

"We therefore again raise our apostolic voice in your august assembly, and we blame anew, we condemn, and declare null and of no effect, the law above mentioned, and all and each of the acts and decrees which have taken place in Piedmont to the detriment of religion, of the Church, of our authority, and the rights of the Holy See—acts and decrees of which we spoke with sorrow in our allocution of the 22d January last. We are besides obliged to declare with the most profound regret that all those who in Piedmont have not feared to propose, approve, and sanction the said measure, and the law against the Church and the rights of the Holy See, that all those also who are associated by them, who give support, counsel and aid to them, and who execute their orders, have incurred the most severe censures and the other penalties established by the sacred canons against the Holy Church, the Apostolic Chair, and the decrees of General Councils, particularly those of the Council of Trent."

As regards Spain a similar protest is published, conceived in the following terms:

"Raising our voice in your assembly, we complain of all that the lay government has done and is still doing in Spain, unjustly against the Church, against its liberty and rights, against us, and the authority of the Holy See; and especially we deeply deplore our solemn Concordat violated in defiance of international law; the authority of the bishops prevented in the exercise of the sacred ministry; the violence employed against them; and the patrimony of the Church usurped in spite of all divine and human laws. We, therefore, in virtue of our apostolic authority, censure, abrogate, and declare without value and without force, null and of no effect, for the past and the future, the said laws and decrees. Lastly, we call on the authors of all these audacious acts, and we exhort and supplicate them to consider seriously that those who do not fear to afflict and torment the Holy Church of God cannot escape the hand of the Almighty."

Both no doubt will fall harmless. Meanwhile the Pope's Nuncio has left Madrid, and the Spanish Ambassador will leave Rome, I expect, in a day or two. So much for the affairs of this city.

I must now turn to Naples. The King has commissioned the police to flog people who express any opinion on the war, and the result is, a commission has been formed to try any one the police think fit to arrest. Several persons of the better classes, such as lawyers and literary men, have been flogged, and others have been sent into exile, not for any overt act, but because they are suspected of holding opinions hostile to the Government. To such a state of degradation is this country reduced that many persons regularly pay some of money to the Police authorities not to be arrested. It is difficult to make the public believe that such a state of things can exist in our age. But the Government of the United States must be aware of it, for I know Mr. OWEN, the American Minister here, has made faithful reports of all that is taking place. The Government of the Two Sicilies are afraid of two political sects—the MAZZINI, or republican party, and the Murattist party, which has grown up since the present Emperor of the French came to the throne. I believe both number very few, but all would gladly welcome a change from the present insane state of the [illegible]

In Turkey the war is very popular, but the Pied[illegible] [illegible] with the Russians. The army is retreating to the inner country, preparing for a Winter campaign with fair chance, as no one expects the war will terminate this year.

The cholera is spreading rapidly throughout Italy—in Rome, Tuscany, and especially in Lombardy. As regards the home country, which may be called Austrian Italy, a large number of troops are marching, and it is feared if Austria eventually joins Russia, the Russian power will attack Piedmont—which Austria could do with advantage, as the best troops of Sardinia are in the Crimea.

There is nothing worth recording just now in other parts of the Peninsula.

The Accessory Transit Company Steamship Northern Light, Captain E. L. TINKERHAM, arrived Friday evening from San Juan, via Key West, with 447 passengers and $1,065,507, from San Francisco, Aug. 18, per steamship Uncle Sam.

Nothing of importance had occurred since the last steamer, excepting the departure of I. C. WOODS, of the firm of ADAMS & Co., for Australia, and the discovery of a bogus gold dust manufactory.

Gold continues to come in plentifully from the mines, and money is much easier.

The passengers by this ship came through in perfect health, there having been no cholera or other disease on the route for two months past. The river is high and the route in most excellent order.

The new 112-boat San Carlos, capable of carrying a thousand passengers comfortably, commenced her regular trips on the 20th ult. The Company now having three boats on the Lake, there is no possibility of detention.

The war rages in the interior. On the 16th ult. at Santa, twenty-four leagues from Leon, toward Segovia, a bloody battle was fought between the Government troops under GUARDIOLA and the Democratic Army under MUNOS, assisted by ALVAREZ, with forces from Honduras, which resulted in the complete defeat of GUARDIOLA and the death of MUNOS.

On the 29th, Col. WALKER landed at San Juan del Sur with 50 men of his command, and 170 of the Democratic army under MENDEZ, leaving a reserve on his schooner of about 80 men. He was endeavoring to recruit from the California passengers with but little success. He offered every facility to the Transit Company, proffering a guard for the specie, &c.

Col KINNEY's party are still at San Juan del Norte. He has just concluded a contract for the Shepard grant of thirty-five millions of acres of land on the Mosquito Coast, and has sent an agent to Granada to get the grant confirmed by the Nicaraguan Government, and also to obtain permission to settle in Chontales. He is very sanguine of success. He has erected a frame building of two stories for a printing office, and is to publish a paper soon, the materials having arrived on the English steamer of the 31st, with Consul FARRAR and thirty men.

The Northern Light left in the harbor of San Juan, Aug. 31, the English Mail Steamer Clyde; American schr. Onkahye, Thompson, of Baltimore, from Blewfields for San Blas, same day; and His Mosquito Majesty's yacht Turtle.

BUSINESS IN CALIFORNIA.

Amusements—Great Ball—Political Affairs, &c., &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Saturday, Aug. 18, 1855.

Both the Golden Gate and Uncle Sam have been detained two days beyond their usual time, waiting the arrival of the Sonora with the mail, and to give the mercantile community an opportunity of answering their correspondents by this mail; but up to the present moment (8 A. M.) there are no tidings of her from the outer telegraph station, although she might be within a mile of the harbor, and not discernable, for the fog is so thick this morning it knocks one's hat off.

The Uncle Sam brought us news from New-York inside of twenty-two days, having arrived on the morning of the 11th—a quick trip. If the other line do not put on better boats between New-York and Aspinwall, they will find themselves badly beaten every trip, and people will travel on the quickest route. A boat like the Empire City, between New-York and Aspinwall—eleven days making the passage—won't do in these fast days. If the affairs of the Mail Company were as well managed on your side as here, we should not be thus vainly stretching our necks looking for the steamer and mail, now on her 20th day out, and still not cannot-come's-in.

The news by this steamer will not prove very interesting to your commercial community, as it does not herald large sales at high prices, and is not as cheerful as by the previous steamer, but it will be very interesting, undoubtedly, to Californians who are straying about the watering places, and killing time as best they may—being mostly political news. We hear, see and read of nothing but politics. The papers are filled with stunning articles, which nobody cares to wade through; the streets are crowded with little knots of eager aspirants for office, and the crowd so obstruct the east side of Montgomery-street, (our Wall-street,) that it is almost impossible to get through. As you show your way, you get a very confused idea of the real state of affairs from the desultory scraps of conversations that strike your ear. It's something about "Ky eyes" Gophers—BIGLER man. One says JOHN BIGLER stands no more chance than puzzy in a warm location without sarsaparilla. 'JOHN BIGLER,' who wants to bet a hat he will be elected by ten thousand majority—WM. NEELY JOHNSON—just the best man—ALEX. ACKE for County Treasurer, a good nomination. ACKE's a devilish good fellow, (he is that,) and I go in strong for him, &c., &c., &c.—the running fire of conversation reminding me of some old bulletin board where one notice or bill hits across another, and you only get the headings of one and the conclusion of another. The Know-Nothing nominations are not wholly satisfactory to the party; that of WM. NEELY JOHNSON for Governor seems to be very well received, but that of MURRAY for Judge of the Supreme Court is condemned, and some others are considered unfortunate, and it is thought that the nominations are not the best that could have been made, the strongest men not having been brought forward. I heard a gentleman from my county, who has been prominent there in political affairs, bring the country, yesterday assert that he thought Buchanan's chances tremendously doubtful, that Pennsylvania would be lost to the Democracy, that Ohio would be lost, and that Indiana would be lost unless Democrats will lend some of pounded money to prop Democratic majority, &c.

Business generally has been very quiet during the last fortnight, and the speculating mania has been clipped. It was nothing more than Dr. Cumming talked, and a few dozen of slipper ship, with large cargoes, brought them out of their condensed state and started the commercial system immediately. Our business men are almost so foolish as Eastern capitalists to a California trade fortune; for they take up certain articles, rush it on them for a time, causing heavy shipments thereby on the receipt of the news at the East, and long before the same goods leave New-York, things have fallen back to their former position. There's no use in letting spirits stove out and never will reach such extravagant prices as formerly, even if the market is bare, for we now have everything, or a substitute for almost everything. If there are no opera pear in market, we will take them whole, rather than pay a limited dollar a pound for them—if the march market is too stiff for us, we will wear drop-down collars awhile—if leaf sugar is up in the clouds, we will use China No. 1—if China No. 1 is scarce, we can use common brown, and if common brown is too high, we can fall back on molasses; and so it always will be. And consequently speculation is never going to run up the price of any article beyond what consumers can afford to pay.

The people of California have no money in these days to throw away or squander upon their appetites or "fabrication," and are fast learning that a certain system of economy is absolutely necessary. The market reports quote prices of certain articles high, but they are merely nominal, and as long as there is no demand they might as well set them at high figures as low. The arrivals of quite a large fleet of clippers and foreign vessels have stocked our market abundantly. The ship Lexington, which sailed from New-York for Petropolewski, on entering there and finding no one at home, brought her cargo, consisting mainly of flour, to this port. I have not learned what disposition will be made of it. We have now in port a small steamer (propeller) belonging to the Hudson Bay Company, called the Otter, which owned to be barely capable of carrying up some half dozen immense guns—large enough for the battery of a 74. It is my firm belief, if they ever fire them from her decks she will go down. The English and Chinese seem to be very much alike in that respect—load their small vessels down with guns that nearly sink them. A small armed steamer called Brisk, (she is certainly ironically named, for she is as dull a craft as ever floated,) belonging to the fleet, is also here, and one French man-of-war; the balance of the fleet have sailed for Valparaiso and the China Seas. Before they left, a meeting of the members of the Pacific Club was called for the purpose of taking a vote on the question whether they would or would not give the officers of the Allied fleet a ball. The debate was a stormy one, and the meeting finally broke up in a very excited state at 2 o'clock in the morning, and the ball was not given, much to the chagrin of many ladies who had ordered magnificent ball dresses in expectancy, but on the prestige of the intention of the Pacific Club. Gen. LOMBY and a Mr. BURAGE came out with a flaming notice of a grand ball to be given in honor of the Allied fleet, which people at first supposed was the ball, but which was only a matter of speculation. Before the evening announced, people smelled the ruse; and although the officers of the fleet generally were there, (except the French Admiral,) General WOOL and staff, from Benicia, the ball was a melancholy failure, a cigar girl from Clay-street being the belle.

The ladies of the Oriental Hotel, however, taking compassion of the poor dupes of Yankee speculation, resolved, on the spur of the moment, to give them a ball the next evening at the Hotel, and with the proverbial energy and stir-about-iveness of California females, they issued their invitations the next morning, and the ball came off as per programme, and proved a very delightful affair—went off to a charm, and our best society was well represented. There was no turn'ng up noses at anybody, and no "wondering how she came there." The English officers danced and perspired freely, getting so warm that coats and faces were all of a color. The Frenchmen labored hard to make themselves understood and understand others. The desperate attempt of certain ladies to Parlez vous Francais only resulted in appearing to be deeply interested in what they did not understand one word of, and throwing in the Oui Monsieur, very plentifully; in fact, I did not see any lady guilty of the impoliteness of interrupting any French gentleman with any comments or remarks.

The French Admiral did not accept the invitation to the first ball, because it did not seem to be "on the square," (and he was right,) and did not accept the invitation to the last one on account of having refused the first one. Did not wish to make a distinction. Whereupon Sir PATRICK DILLON, the French Consul, set out to make capital out of the circumstance, asserting that the Admiral would not receive civilities from us until the indignity to him (PATRICK) had been apologized for. We only hope the Admiral has patience to wait until that period—but such is not the case, and it is more than probable the Admiral don't care a Continental——red cent about Consul DILLON or his quarrel.

Seven A.M.—There goes the boom of the Sonora's gun, and here she comes. How she found her way through the fog is a mystery to those who don't know that Captain DAVE WHITING is engaged to be married "on arrival." Such is the rumor, at least. We congratulate him, and trust he may be as happy as a bivalve at high tide, and go through life with but homœopathic doses of broomstick. R. L. O.

The first Know-Nothing State Convention met in Sacramento on the 7th inst., and nominated the the following State Ticket:

For Governor—J. NEELY JOHNSON, of Sacramento.

For Lieutenant Governor—R. M. ANDERSON, of El Dorado.

For Justice of the Supreme Court—HUGH C. MURRAY, of Solano, (full term;) D. S. TERRY, of San Joaquin; for the unexpired term of ALEX. WELLS.

The following is the platform adopted by the Know-Nothing Convention:

The American party of the State of California, in Convention assembled, declare the following as the principles of their Association:

14. To apply the Jeffersonian test to all candidates: "Is he capable?" "Is he honest?" &c.

The Sellers' State Convention met in Sacramento on the 6th, and after spending two days in angry discussion, in which the Hamilton wing were defeated, they adjourned, after adopting a platform and accomplishing nothing.

A grand State Temperance Convention is contemplated by the General Committee, to be held in Sacramento, for the purpose of nominating a State ticket.

Disappearance of I. C. Woods.

I. C. WOODS, late business partner and manager of the affairs of ADAMS & Co. in California, secretly left this city on the 5th inst. for Australia, in a sailing vessel.

The following is Mr. Woods's card:

[illegible] the firm of ADAMS & Co., believing it to be the interest of all concerned, I have left the country, without any intention of returning to this State for some time to come. I have not left for the purpose of evading any responsibility, but for the purpose of making a fair and full settlement of the affairs of the firm, which I hope will be satisfactory to all concerned. I have given my partners in New-York full power to act in my stead, and I hope they will be able to settle every demand against the firm. I might be able to do more toward satisfying the creditors of our house if I remained in this country, but I feel that I ought to do what I can toward satisfying the demands against the firm in New-York, and I leave for the purpose of securing a large amount of assets for the benefit of our house in that City.

The transaction, however, was divulged by two men during the past week, Messrs. [illegible] who claimed to represent one of my partners, and who came by an impudent notice of apparently confiding friend of the same name, [illegible] the only agent who had dishonored our bills. The other of the parties came in contact with my partners in a friendly way, and [illegible] confidential agent here, in too opposed to require explanation.

Since the financial crash of February last, in which I shared the fate of many others who were engaged in the same line of business, and who are now in the same condition of insolvency, I have remained here ready to respond to any charge that might be made the subject of a local prosecution against me, with one exception, that of the so called gold dust conspiracy, the result of which is matter of public notoriety. I have been subjected only to those proceedings which are ordinarily adopted to enforce the payment of pecuniary demands.

My object in visiting the Eastern States, is to be serviceable if I can, (as I certainly cannot in here,) to the creditors of our late firm, of whom the principal are whining that I should in this respect commit my own judgment.

I have, therefore, temporarily left this State for New-York, so that upon I hope to arrive at an early date day. I trust I then shall be able to accomplish some useful results, of which, should my present expectations be fulfilled, the parties interested, whether as friends or foes, will not fail to hear. I. C. WOODS.

Startling Developments—Extensive Operations in Bogus Gold Dust.

From the San Francisco Herald, Aug. 18.

About three weeks since, Police-Captain MCDONALD obtained certain information which led him to believe in the existence of an establishment in the city for the manufacture of spurious gold dust, and by persevering, yet necessarily cautious, search and inquiry, he succeeded in discovering the names of the parties directly engaged in the business. Officer GATES was stationed to watch the movements of the suspected persons, and finally obtained sufficient evidence against them to warrant their arrest. The parties were YOUNGER BAY and WM. DUSUMBAY. The former lives Tank, the latter in a Frenchman. Their establishment, situated on Montgomery, between Powell and Mason streets, was searched, and a large quantity of the spurious dust, together with some counterfeit gold coin, was found on the premises.

The principal witness against them is a young man named GUSTAVE, in the employ of Messrs. JOSEPH & Co. According to GUSTAVE's testimony before the Mayor yesterday, he had been offered by BAY a salary of $6,000 a-year for his services, being an adept in process of counterfeiting gold dust. He became acquainted with the parties accused in October last, and BAY offered to take him into partnership. He refused, however, giving as his reason that he thought the business would not hold long, as it must be discovered sooner or later. BAY replied that he had made arrangements with an express office, which guaranteed to take all he could supply; that it was a perfectly safe operation, as the express company were in the daily receipt of from two to five hundred ounces of genuine dust, and the spurious article could be easily worked in without fear of detection. GUSTAVE having refused to connect himself with the speculation, BAY and his partner employed others, and commenced operations in a basement on Washington street, under Montgomery Block. GUSTAVE saw them at work in this place. Subsequently, in passing the cellar, he found that operations had been suspended, and was informed by BAY that the business would not pay.

Some time after they employed GUSTAVE to color some bogus dust, which was intended to be sent by express to Sacramento, but was not finished in time for the night boat. BAY again offered to employ GUSTAVE at exorbitant wages, but the latter refused. The business was then being carried on in the basement of a jewelry establishment on Dupont-street, in a brick house. It appears that the proprietors of the jewelry store was not aware of the character of BAY & Co.'s operations. Subsequently the counterfeiting was carried on in an establishment on Broadway, which was admirably suited to the business. GUSTAVE frequently visited this place, and found them at work in the manufacture of the counterfeit dust. Finally he quarrelled with BAY about some tools which he had loaned him, and this resulted in GUSTAVE's becoming an informant against BAY & Co. He did not inform the police of his knowledge in the matter until Wednesday last. When Capt. MCDONALD was about springing a trap he had laid for the detection of the accused, BAY and his partner were fully committed for trial before the Court of Sessions. The police deserve all praise for the breaking up of this wholesale robbing machine and bringing the parties concerned to justice. The name of the Express Company alluded to has not yet come to light.

The Mines.

Mining news is rather scarce, and during the fortnight the papers in the Northern mines have complained of a want of water. The hill-sides are now resorted to, and quartz mining is again "looking up." Canal companies now convey water to nearly every section of the mining region, and yet there is a cry for water. The investments in water-ditch companies have always paid handsomely. The Southern mines continue to pay well.

Miscellaneous.

An Italian newspaper has been issued in this city. San Francisco has now English, German, French, Spanish, Italian and Chinese newspapers.

On the night of the 6th instant, a fire occurred on Stockton-street, near Pine, in which an intoxicated woman named MARGARET FRENCH was burned to death. She was a native of England.

WM. DUSUMBAY, a Frenchman, and YOUSOUFF BAY, a Turk, were arrested on the 9th, on a charge of counterfeiting gold dust. The proof against them is conclusive.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

Kern River.

The Los Angeles Star of the 11th contains later intelligence from Kern River. The report speaks favorably of the mines. The river is very low at this time, being some four feet lower than at the same season last year, and a large number of men are now preparing to work the bars on the river, which they have never been able to do heretofore on account of the great body of water. Some are putting in wing dams, others sluices, and some are constructing water wheels for the purpose of raising water for working gems. These who are at work are averaging from $3 to $6 per day, and some report still more. The gulches are now dry, and consequently are abandoned for the present, for the want of water. Some rich quartz leads have been opened, one of which is situated in Green Horn gulch, on which three different companies are now operating. They have sunk their shafts forty feet, and the lead continues to grow richer the further they descend. Ten arrastras are now running on this vein, and are averaging about $100 per week to the arrasta, and in some instances more. Messrs. LITTLE & MOONE's Company have ranged as high as $300 per week to the arrasta. This report is furnished by Mr. LITTLE.

Earthquake at Santa Barbara.

Two distinct shocks of an earthquake were felt in this city, says the Santa Barbara Gazette, at about two o'clock P. M. yesterday. The vibration of the earth was from east to west, and for some moments caused considerable excitement amongst our citizens. Many left their houses, apprehensive of a recurrence of the danger. The violence of the shock was sufficient to move the walls of the houses, throw down small articles, and for the time being caused a general consternation.

GREAT EXCITEMENT IN AMADOR COUNTY.

Six Americans Murdered by Mexicans—Particulars of the Tragedy—Pursuit of the Murderers—Three of them Lynched.

Amador county has been the scene of one of the grossest outrages ever perpetrated. A correspondent of the State Journal gives the following particulars:

Yesterday morning, the 6th instant, a party of Chinamen were attacked about three miles below this place by a gang of murderers, composed mostly of Mexicans and Chilenos, and it was said a few Americans were among the number, and succeeded in carrying off $1,500 in gold dust from the hard-working "John." No more attention was paid to the band of high-wayman until last evening, about half-past ten o'clock, when our little town was thrown into a state of great excitement, by the report that about twenty pistol shots were fired in Chile Town at several of our citizens. In a short time every citizen armed himself in view of entering the pueblo. Our constable and Justice Kerr, accompanied by several worthy citizens, proceeded to Chile Town, and in attempting to effect an entrance into a house, a party of Mexicans pounced their pistols and fired at them, but fortunately nobody was hurt. A guard was set at the house, and everybody was after them, but without success. In the morning, a guard of citizens was appointed to protect the place. Nothing more was heard until this morning about five o'clock. A messenger arrived from Rancheria, two miles and a half from here, who informed us that last night about eleven o'clock, four Americans, one Italy and one Indian, were murdered by the Mexicans. Four Indians, which gives many others, escaped to this place. On arriving there, a scene of blood met our view. Three had collected, and a cowardly house was burning behind them. Here a horrible scene was presented to the like I have never seen before.

In a public house, called Rancheria House, in which the Mexicans made their first assault, they killed two Americans who had come in to stay that night, and also murdered Mr. BRANNON, a very old man, who was in the house at the time. They also killed Mr. BRANNON's son in this place, [illegible] and another lady whose name I could not learn. [illegible] Chief of the Sonora River Indians [illegible] Applegate Creek, while on their way to the place, and it is supposed they killed the Chief of the Sonora River Indians [illegible] and conveyed him to jail.

The following is J. J. CRAINE's account:—Two weeks ago I conceived the idea of killing myself. Disagreeable reports then had come to me from the east, did not know what started them, but I was in Sonora's father, but was not effected by them. I was in a state of mind to do anything desperate. THE WHEELER SLAVE CASE.

Important Decision of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

Writ of Habeas Corbus to Passmore Williamson Refused.

The Supreme Court at Philadelphia met on Saturday, at noon, for the purpose of rendering the decision of the Court on the application of Passmore Williamson for a writ of habeas corpus. The five Judges were upon the Bench, and the District Court-room, in which the Court sat, was crowded with attentive listeners. Inside the bar we noticed a number of the leading legal gentlemen of the city. Judge Black read the decision of the Court. It is as follows:

DECISION.

EX-PARTE WILLIAMSON—Opinion by Justice Black.—This is an application by Passmore Williamson for habeas corpus. He complains that he is held in custody under a commitment of the District Court of the United States for a contempt of that Court in refusing to obey its process. The process for which he is confined for disobeying was a habeas corpus commanding him to produce the bodies of certain colored persons claimed as slaves under the law of Virginia.

Is he entitled to the writ he has asked for? In considering what answer we shall give to this question, we are, of course, expected to be influenced, as in other cases, by the law and the Constitution alone. The gentlemen who appeared as counsel for the petitioner, and who argued the motion in a manner which did them great honor, pressed upon us no considerations, except those which were founded upon their legal views of the subject.

It is argued with much earnestness, and no doubt with perfect sincerity, that we are bound to allow the writ, without stopping to consider whether the petitioner has or has not laid before us any probable cause for supposing that he is illegally detained—that every man confined in prison, except for treason or felony, is entitled to it, as debita justitia—and that we cannot refuse it without a frightful violation of the petitioner's rights, no matter how plainly it may appear on his own showing that he is held in custody for a just cause. If this be true, the case of ex-parte Lawrence (5 Binn 304) is not law. There the writ was refused because the applicant had been previously heard before another court. But if every man who applies for a habeas corpus must have it, as a matter of right, and without regard to anything but the mere fact that he demands it, then a court or a judge has no more power to refuse a second than a first application.

Is it really true that the special application, which must be made for every writ of habeas corpus, and the examination of the commitment, which we are bound to make before it can issue, are mere hollow and unsubstantial forms? Can it be possible that the law and the courts are so completely under the control of their natural enemies—that every class of offenders against the Union or the State, except traitors and felons, may be brought before us at their pleasure, discharged, and know beforehand, by their own admissions, that we cannot help but remand them immediately? If these questions must be answered in the affirmative, then we are compelled, against our will and contrary to our convictions of duty, to wage a constant warfare against the Federal tribunals, by firing off writs of habeas corpus upon them all the time. The punitive justice of the State would suffer still more seriously. The half of the Western Penitentiary would be before us at Philadelphia, and a similar proportion from Cherrybill and Moyamensing would attend our sittings at Pittsburg.

To remand them would do very little good; for a new set of writs would bring them all back again. A sentence of solitary confinement would be a sentence that the convict should travel for a limited term up and down the State, in company with the officers who might have him in charge. By the same means the inmates of the lunatic asylums might be temporarily enlarged, much to their own detriment; and every soldier or seaman in the service of the country could consult their commanders to bring them before the Court six times a week.

But the habeas corpus has never received such a construction. It is a writ of right, and may not be refused to one who shows a prima facie case entitling him to be discharged or bailed. But he has no right to demand it who admits that he is in legal custody for an offence not bailable; he does make what is equivalent to such an admission when his own application, and the commitment referred to in it, show that he is lawfully detained. A complaint must be made, and the cause of detainer submitted to a judge, before the writ can go. The very object and purpose of this is to prevent it from being trifled with by those who have manifestly no right to be set at liberty. It is like a writ of error in a criminal case, which the Court or Judge is bound to allow, if there be reason to suppose that an error has been committed, and equally bound to refuse it, if it be clear that the judgment must be affirmed.

We are not aware that any application in this Court for a writ of habeas corpus has ever been successful, where the Judge, at the time of the allowance, was satisfied that the prisoner must be remanded. The petitioner's counsel say there is but one reported case in which it was refused; (5 Binns, 304) and this urged in the argument, as a reason for supposing that in all other cases the writ was issued without examination. But no such inference can fairly be drawn from the scarcity of judicial decisions on a point like this. We do not expect to find in reports so rare as ours some long established rules of law, which the system treats from his elementary books, and which are constantly acted upon without being disputed.

The Act of Congress of 5 March, 1796, and the new one of 31 August, 1842, are the foundation of our jurisdiction in the matter. The statute of 31 Car. II., c. 2, made no alteration in the practice of the Courts in granting these writs. (2 Hen. & Ald. 429; Chitty's Eqs., 207.) It merely provided that the Judges in vacation should have the power which the Court had previously exercised in term time. It therefore, from the first, had the usual position upon the docket of a court. The statute was intended to give a remedy by habeas corpus to those who were in prison, or restrained of their liberty under pretence of law, but it left the law as it found it, in all other respects. It leaves the writ a matter of right in every case where it issues at all. The Constitution of Pennsylvania, in every case, ordains that "the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended unless when, in cases of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require it." Congress has conferred upon the Federal Judges the power to issue such writs, according to the principles and rules regulating it in other Courts. Seeing that the same general principles of common law on this subject prevail in England and America, and seeing also the identity of language in the statutes in both countries, the decisions of the English Judges are not of the American Courts, both State and Federal, are entitled to our fullest respect on nothing and defining our powers and duties.

Blackstone (3 Com. 132) says the writ of habeas corpus should be allowed only when the court or judge is satisfied that the party both probable cause to be delivered. He gives cogent reasons why it should not be allowed in any other case, and cites with unqualified approbation the precedents set by Sir Edward Coke and Chief J. Vaughan in cases where they had refused to Chitty lays down the rule. (1 Cr. Law, 101; 1 Conf. Prac., 606-7.) It seems to have been acted upon by all the Judges. The writ was refused in Rex vs. Schleiter, (1 Burr. 765,) and in the case of the Three Spanish Sailors (3 Blackst's R. 1324.)

In Hobhouse's Case, (3 Barr & Ald., 415,) it was fully settled by an unanimous Court, as the true construction of the statute, that the writ is never to be allowed, if upon view of the commitment, it be manifest that the prisoner must be remanded. In New-York, when the statute in force there was precisely like ours, (so far, I mean, as this question is concerned,) it was decided by the Supreme Court, (5 Johns. 282,) that the allowance of the writ was a matter within the discretion of the Court, depending on the grounds laid in the application. It was refused in Hunter's Case, (1, 3, Com. 136,) and in Ex-parte Ferguson, (9 Johns. R.)

In addition to this we have the opinion of Chief Justice Marshall in Wheaton's case, (4 Cranch 102) that the writ ought not be awarded if the Court is satisfied that the prisoner must be remanded. It was accordingly refused by the Supreme Court of the United States in that case, as it had been before in Kearney's case.

On the whole, we are thoroughly satisfied that our duty requires us to view and examine the cause of detainer now, and to make an end of the business at once, if it appear that we have no power to discharge him on the return of this writ.

This prisoner, as already said, is confined on a sentence of the District Court of the United States, for a contempt. A habeas corpus is not a writ of error. It cannot bring a case before us in such a manner that we can exercise any kind of appellate jurisdiction on it.

On a habeas corpus, the judgment even of a subordinate State Court, cannot be disregarded, reversed, or set aside, however clearly we may perceive it to be erroneous, and however plain it may be that we ought to reverse it if it were before us on appeal or writ of error. We can only look at the record to see whether a judgment exists, and have no power to say whether it is right or wrong. It is conclusively presumed to be right until it is regularly brought up for revision.

We decided this three years ago at Sunbury, in a case which we all thought one of much hardship. But the rule is so familiar, so universally acknowledged, and so reasonable in itself, that it requires only to be stated. It applies with still more emphasis, or at least for much stronger reasons, to the decisions of the federal courts.

Over them we have no control at all, under any circumstances, or by any process that could be devised. Those tribunals belong to a different judicial system from ours. They administer a different code of laws, and are responsible to a different sovereignty.

The District Court of the U. S. is as independent of us as we are of it—as independent as the Supreme Court of the U. S. is of either. What the law and the Constitution have forbidden us to do directly on writ of error, we, of course, cannot do indirectly by habeas corpus.

But the petitioner's counsel have put his case on the ground that the whole proceeding against him in the District Court was coram non judice, null and void.

It is certainly true that a void judgment may be regarded as no judgment at all; and every judgment is void which clearly appears on its own face to have been pronounced by a court having no jurisdiction or authority in the subject matter.

For instance, if a federal court should convict and sentence a citizen for libel; or if a State court, having no jurisdiction except in civil pleas, should try an indictment for a crime and convict the party—in these cases the judgments would be wholly void.

If the petitioner can bring himself within this principle, then there is no judgment against him; he is wrongfully imprisoned, and we must order him to be brought out and discharged.

What is he detained for? The answer is easy and simple. The commitment shows that he was tried, found guilty and sentenced for contempt of Court, and nothing else. He is now confined in execution of that sentence, and for no other cause. This was a distinct and substantive offence against the authority and government of the United States. Does anybody doubt the jurisdiction of the District Court to punish contempt? Certainly not. All courts have this power, and most necessarily have it; otherwise they could not protect themselves from insult, or enforce obedience to their process. Without it, they would be utterly powerless. The authority to deal with an offender of this class belongs exclusively to the court in which the offence is committed; and no other court, not even the highest, can interfere with its exercise, either by writ of error, mandamus, or habeas corpus. If the power be abused, there is no remedy but impeachment. The law was so held by this Court in M'Laughlin's case, (5, W. & S. 275,) and by the Supreme Court of the United States in Kearney's case (7 Wheaton, 38.) It was solemnly settled, as part of the common law, in Brass Crosley's case, (3 Wilson, 188,) by a Court in which sat two of the foremost jurists that England ever produced. We have not the smallest doubt that it is the law; and we must administer it as we find it. The only attempt ever made to disregard it was by a New-York Judge (4 Johns. R. 345) who was not supported by his brethren. This attempt was followed by all the evil and confusion which Blackstone, and Kent, and Story declared to be its necessary consequences. Whoever will trace that singular controversy to its termination will see that the Chancellor and the majority of the Supreme Court, though once outvoted in the Senate, were never answered.

The Senate itself yielded to the force of the truths which the Supreme Court had laid down so clearly; and the judgment of the Court of Errors in Yale's Case, (6 Johns, 503,) was overruled by the same Court, the year afterwards, in Yates vs. Lansing, (9 Johns. R. 395,) which grew out of the very same transaction and depended on the same principles. Still further reflection at a later period induced the Senate to join the popular branch of the Legislature in passing a statute which effectually prevents one judge from interfering by habeas corpus with the judgment of another on a question of contempt.

These principles being settled, it follows irresistibly that the District Court of the United States had power and jurisdiction to decide what acts constitute a contempt against it; to determine whether the petitioner had been guilty of contempt; and to inflict upon him the punishment which, in its opinion, he ought to suffer. If we fully believed the petitioner to be innocent—if we were sure that the Court which convicted him misunderstood the facts, or misapplied the law—still we could not reexamine the evidence, or review the justice of the case, without grossly disregarding what we know to be the law of the land. The judge of the District Court decided the question on his own constitutional responsibility. Even if he could be shown to have acted tyrannically or corruptly, he could be called to answer for it only in the Senate of the United States.

But the counsel of the petitioner to go behind the proceeding in which he was convicted, and argues that the sentence for contempt is void, because the Court had no jurisdiction of a certain other matter, which it was investigating, or attempting to investigate, when the contempt was committed. We find a judgment against him in our case; and he complains about another, in which there is no judgment. He is suffering for an offence against the United States; and he says he is innocent of any wrong to a particular individual. He is conclusively adjudged guilty of contempt, and he tells us that the Court had no jurisdiction to restore Mr. Wheeler's slaves.

It must be remembered that contempt of court is a specific criminal offence. It is punished, sometimes by indictment, and sometimes in a summary proceeding, as it was in this case. In either mode of trial, the adjudication against the offender is a conviction, and the commitment in consequence is execution. (7 Wheat. 38.) This is well settled, and, I believe has never been doubted. Certainly the learned counsel for the petitioner have not denied it. The contempt may be connected with some particular cause, or it may consist in misbehaviour, which has a tendency to obstruct the administration of justice generally. When it is committed in a pending cause the proceeding to punish it is a proceeding by itself. It is not entitled in the cause pending, but as the criminal side. (Wall 134.)

The record of a conviction for contempt is as distinct from the matter under investigation when it was committed as an indictment for perjury is from the cause in which the false oath was taken. Call a person convicted of perjury ask us to deliver him from the penitentiary on showing that the oath on which the perjury is assigned was taken in a cause of which the court had no jurisdiction? Would any judge in the Commonwealth listen to such a reason for treating the sentence as void? If, instead of swearing falsely, he refuses to be sworn at all, and he is convicted, not of perjury, but of contempt, the same rule applies, and with a force precisely equal. If it be really true that no contempt can be committed against a court while it is inquiring into a matter beyond its jurisdiction, and if the fact was so in this case, then the petitioner had a good defence; and he ought to have made it on his trial. To make it after conviction is too late. The matter is here to be produced before the Wrong tribunal.

Every judgment must be conclusive until reversed. Such is the character, nature and essence of all judgments. If it be not conclusive, it is not a judgment. A court must either have power to settle a given question finally and forever, or else it has no power to make any decision at all. To say that a court may determine a matter, and that another court may regard the determination afterwards as open and undetermined, is an absurdity in terms.

It is most especially necessary that convictions for contempt should be conclusive. Courts would be driven from their determination by other courts on habeas corpus, if the law was not so, and our judicial system would crumble to pieces in a month. Courts would be constantly at war with each other, and confusion would be the result. The inferior courts would be subject to all the caprices of the judges placed over and above them. A party on a

Judge KNOX reads a lengthy opinion, dissenting from the majority of the Court, which we find impossible to give in full in consequence of the lateness of the hour. The following remarks, which he gave for the reasons, contain the essence of his views:

1. At common law, and by our statute of 1785, the writ of habeas corpus is a right, to a writ commanding this whatever a person in due form asserts what, if true, would entitle the party to relief.

2. There is allegation here, that the petitioner is restrained of his liberty by an order of a judge of a court of competent jurisdiction, and the decision of the court, so as to leave no longer discretionary with the court, on Americans in St. Petersburg.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Ohio Statesman, writing on July 19, says:

"There are at present in St. Petersburg many Americans, and among them three officers of the United States Army—Majors DERAGLEIRE and MORGAN, and Captain McCHARMAN, who compose the commission sent out to inspect the fortifications of the navy yard on the Gulf on the Continent. During their tour through England and France they had, I am [illegible] granted them that they desired, and [illegible] all the latest improvements made in those countries. Since their stay in this city, they have been very busy in the same business, accompanied by an Aide to the Minister of War, who has exceedingly pleased them and attached to him, and to their entire satisfaction. They went to Cronstadt with the commander of the port, for the purpose of examining some works in course of erection, and the particulars of. It is yet uncertain whether they will visit the Crimea. Colonel T. B. MARCHMAN, of Kentucky, a gentleman of no small intelligence and merit, is also sojourning in this city, and is a frequent visitor at the Grande Telegraph, which has by some means acquired the reputation of being a resort for Americans, as a visionary idea, but which now represents, I think, the present state of affairs in Russia, and the power of the press in this country. Colonel MARCHMAN is a gentleman of the highest character, and a man of ability, and I have no doubt, if he should return to the United States, he will be able to give a good account of his travels in Russia, and of the condition of the country, which is little known, and generally misrepresented in the United States. Colonel MARCHMAN is a brother of the late Colonel MARCHMAN, who was killed in the battle of Monterey, and is a nephew of the late Hon. JOHN J. CRITTENDEN, of Kentucky. He is a man of fine address, and a good specimen of a Kentuckian or Virginian. He is, I believe, a lawyer by profession, and a man of much reading and information, and a good specimen of a Southern gentleman. He is, I believe, a Whig in politics, and a man of much energy of character. He is, I believe,

It is not easy to see how Mr. WILLIAMSON is ever to escape from prison, so long as Judge KANE chooses to keep him there.

The Missouri Senator.

The Tribune announced, on Saturday, the election of DAVID R. ATCHISON to the U. S. Senate, by the Missouri Legislature. The details of the proceedings were given:—four ballots were had, and on the last he was said to be elected, although all the votes cast did not reach a quorum. The Legislature, moreover, was not in session at the time specified, and does not meet till December. And, finally, we have a direct contradiction of the truth of the report from St. Louis.

And yet, in spite of all this, the rumor is so plausible that it ought to be true. There is so striking an aptitude between ATCHISON and a Missouri constituency, they seem so thoroughly fitted and predestined for each other; and the probability of an illegal and violent mode of election is so entirely in keeping with the lawless state of things in that Commonwealth, that nothing short of a "by authority" denial can set the public mind at rest. Had some aspirant like BARROW, or BAYES, or GUYER, been named, the intrinsic absurdity of the story would have quelled it instantly. Grapes and figs are not gathered from thorns and thistles. But that ATCHISON should have been chosen, and irregularly, is so like truth, as displayed in Missouri for the last year or two, that it is nearly impossible to withhold credit from the statement. After once preferring the border marauder to the cultivated, earnest, hard-headed, and, to say the truth, frequently wrong-headed, BARROW, the Legislature of that State can hardly be the object of very sanguine anticipations in any case.

Comparative physiology has no difficulty in classifying such characters as that of the ex-President of the Senate. He belongs to a species familiar to all residents in the West. They are found in every bar-room, and turn up inevitably at political meetings or the County Court. They are usually small lawyers, of democratic professions, and vile habits; affecting vulgarity of dress, manners, and association, in order to rid themselves of any suspicion of aristocratic pretension, against which the unhewn and unkempt sons of the prairie have an implacable prejudice. They may be seen loitering from their log-offices to the blacksmith shop, or the 'squire's, or the tavern, stockingless, shoes down at heel, coatless, a huge quid of tobacco in the cheek, or a cigar flaming from one corner of the mouth. They may be heard swaggering and blustering wherever a lazy village audience can be gathered together, unsparing in profanity, and as ready with a blow or a bowie-knife as with the tongue. Their practice is more extensive at the bar-room and the barrel, than as barristers. They take the only daily paper received in the town, and are on hand to read it, when the mail arrives, to an admiring audience, who accept the text and the running commentary of the village politician with equal docility. They can talk, and are therefore, delegates to all sorts of conventions; they can quarrel, and are, therefore, the men to "stump" a District, or the State, as disputants, Western-wise, where opposing candidates hunt for votes in couples. The only capital needed for entire success in the trade is impudence, volubility, blackguardism, profanity, drunkenness, ferocity, and the reverse of any picture representative of a gentleman; and so qualified, the frontier lawyer and politician is a rising man.

And such a man is this ATCHISON—a poor specimen of the class, however, because wholly devoid of that talent which is not one of its rarest characteristics. We can recall no record of any public man so destitute of merit as his. Noisy and brawling in the lobby, he has been noteless for anything wise or well-said in the Senate Chamber. The Congressional Globe would have helped his fame by leaving blanks after each recurrence of his name. His presence, indeed, is a perpetual tribute to the long-suffering of the Senate. It has experience of small men. PRESTON, of Indiana, has been there, small in name and kind; NORRIS, of New-Hampshire, was there. Men have been there—like JARNAGIN, of Tennessee, whose luckless vote on the Tariff killed him and it—whose good names have been sold for nothing; blockheads and bullies have been there, like BORLAND,—a human extract of both; and mean men have been there, like that Pennsylvania statesman whose devotion to a railroad speculation contributed to the loss of Kansas and Nebraska to freedom. But the history of the Senate records no instance where it has enjoyed the society and sweet counsel of a member so thoroughly accomplished in little, mean, stupid, ruffianly attributes, as this frontier pettifogger; this predestined, we fear, if not actual, representative of Missouri, and mis-representative of Kansas, in the Senate.

Let us then encourage such hope as there may be, that Mr. ATCHISON may not revisit the Senate. The Roman despot who decreed Senatorial dignity to his horse, was not understood thereby to confer honor upon that august body. The return of ATCHISON from Missouri, since his late culmination in shame and lawlessness, would be an insult to the Senate and the country; and, independent of all sectional or partisan feeling, it should be the subject of universal protest.

☞ The telegraph gives us an account of another accident on the Camden and Amboy Railroad, which occurred on Saturday afternoon near Beverly, and by which the engineer seems to have lost his life through his own [illegible]. It was occasioned by a flaw in an axle.

Condition of the Theatrical Business.

Last year, it is said, was a bad one for the theatres and other places of public amusement; for such establishments are the first to feel the effect of hard times, or a tight money market. Men must have the necessaries of life, and nobody will willingly go without a dinner for the sake of going to the play. Besides, amusement is a cash article; there is no trust at the box-office, and the credit system has not yet been extended to the doors of opera-houses. The theatres, therefore, if they are first to feel the effect of hard times, are also the first to experience the benefit of the returning tide of prosperity. With but few exceptions, all our City theatres and show-houses lost money during the past year. But the times are more prosperous, and they are all preparing to reap the benefit of the present healthful state of the public purse.

The season has been brilliantly inaugurated by RACHEL, and the regular houses have all been cleaned,—some of them repainted, the faded draperies replaced by new materials, the gildings retouched, and the purple wings of other genii that flutter on theatrical ceilings have been retouched. Managers who went abroad for new stars have returned, but report a great scarcity of available talent abroad; and the new names announced have been but few. Next month the Opera Season will commence, and New-York's capacity for enjoying and supporting public shows, which we believe to be greater than that of any other City of its size in the world, will be pretty well tested.

The amount of money invested in permanent places of public amusement in New-York, and the number of persons who derive their means of living from them, is much greater than would be supposed by those who have never made an estimate of them. The prejudices which once existed against all places of public amusement have, in a great degree, worn away, and even those who never visit the Theatre, or Opera-house, or Concert-room, regard such places with indifference rather than with that feeling of active hostility which once prevailed among the greater part of the people. But still the profession of a public performer is a tabooed one; and, while the theatre is avoided as an improper place by the teachers of religion, it must remain under a cloud. The best talent will not run in that direction, and we shall not be able to boast of a LOPE DE VEGA, a SHERIDAN, nor even a SCRIBE. We can never hope for a second SHAKESPEARE.

RACHEL will give a new impulse to theatre-going, and her classical impersonations will attract a class of educated people who have not hitherto been seen in the dress circles and parquettes of our places of amusement. There are now open, or will be during the week, eight large and well-conducted Theatres, besides several Concert-rooms and Ethiopian Opera-houses. Next month the Academy of Music will be added to them. If all these public places of amusement, which can only be supported by a constant succession of full audiences, can flourish together in New-York, it will indicate a condition of prosperity and general welfare that no other community, we believe, in the world, of the same numbers, can equal.

New-York an Encampment.

One reason for the dumb endurance with which New-Yorkers submit to the extortions and malversations of their grabbing and sticky-fingered City Officials is, doubtless, the economical consideration that to resist or remedy them would cost more, in time or money, or both, than to suffer them.

But a more substantial one is the fact that so few residents of the City have a home in it. The New-Yorker has, usually,—unless he is one of those who have only "the key of the street,"—some centre of operations: a house, a tenement, rooms, a chamber, an office; at the very least, that criterion of a clerk's residence, a "place to keep his trunk." But, except exceptionally, he has no home, unless he be a native Gothamite, and not always then. He is encamped upon the Island, hutted, as the Allies are before Sebastopol, during his warfare after wealth, and, having won his victory and secured his spoils, he goes down somewhither into the country to celebrate his triumph and to enjoy his laurels, and eke his vine and fig-tree; sometimes to the neighborhood of his early home, sometimes elsewhere.

Consider the figures. We have in the City a population of about seven hundred thousand. Of these, if as is probable the numbers are proportionately as in 1850, rather more than three hundred and fifty thousand are of foreign birth; about seventy thousand are natives of States other than New-York; and from that State itself, outside the City, a number, for determining which we find no data, but which we shall very safely estimate,—at a much lower rate of immigration than actually takes place from the nutmeg State and the State of Camden-and-Amboy,—at thirty thousand.

In other words, besides receiving more than half its population from foreign countries, there is encamped in New-York City a great permanent contingent of volunteers, enlisted at the rate of one from every two hundred and fifty, from all the inhabitants of the United States; a proportion very much increased, of course, in the neighborhood of the City, and decreasing according to the distance from it. The citizens of New-Haven, for instance, will find settled in New-York, from one hundred and fifty to two hundred of his fellow-townsmen; from Poughkeepsie we have here not less than one hundred and fifty; from Newark, three hundred and fifty; and so on.

Watchful superintendence of municipal affairs is not often to be expected, except from permanent residents. A large majority of such temporary citizens will be under very strong temptations to endure the occasional imposition of an extravagant tax, and rather to devote their time and energy to the profits of business, than to the comparatively trifling individual saving—which, after all, is the amount that City Reform can offer to each of them.

These considerations are by no means intended to discourage any attempts to cleanse the Augean Stables at the City Hall. None can be more earnestly desirous of a just, efficient and economical City Government than we. Our only purpose is to direct attention to the actual state of the case; and we are confident that if the circumstances demand, as it seems to us they do, an unusual degree of self-sacrificing activity on the part of our City voters, it will be shown at the proper time.

The Yellow Fever.

The telegraphic accounts which reached us last night from Baltimore, conveyed the sad intelligence that there is no abatement in the progress of this scourge at Norfolk and Portsmouth, and that, in addition, the Small-Pox has broken out at the former place, ten cases of which occurred on Saturday. The fever was spreading to the adjoining country. On Friday there were forty deaths at Norfolk, and on Saturday, up to noon, twenty-five. At Portsmouth, on Friday, there were twenty-two deaths and fifty new cases; on Saturday, up to noon, fifteen deaths. A quantity of tents had been taken down to Norfolk from Baltimore, under the direction of the Mayor and Councils of the latter city, and pitched on a healthy site, and it was expected that many persons would avail themselves of the opportunity thus afforded to escape from the vicinity of the infection.

At New-Orleans, our report states that the fever was sensibly abating, and that the returns would doubtless show a gratifying decrease in the number of deaths.

☞ The Republican movement in Massachusetts seems to be progressing. A meeting of citizens of Springfield, composed of members of all the old parties, was convened on Saturday night, to appoint delegates to attend the Republican Union Convention at Worcester, on the 20th instant. Harmony and enthusiasm prevailed, and the expression of the sentiment of the meeting against any more compromises with Slavery was very decided. Other towns throughout the State are responding to calls for conventions.

How the Voting was done in Kansas.

Every one has a general idea of the manner in which the Missouri invaders took possession of the Kansas polls at the late election;—but few, we presume, are posted up as to the details of the operation. We have heard from a gentleman who took an active part in the election at Lawrence, an account of the matter interesting enough to be repeated.

The day before the election, some nine hundred men came into town from Missouri, with teams, wagons, tents, &c., and encamped. The polls were to be open in the morning, and three judges were to preside and decide on the eligibility of voters. One of these was Judge ABBOTT, from Massachusetts; another was HUGH CAMERON, from Washington; and the post of the third was vacant.

The first thing to be done was to fill the vacancy. Nobody could be found on whom the two agreed; but one CUMMINGS, recommended by the Pro-Slavery men, was finally accepted—CAMERON securing ABBOTT's consent by the most solemn assurances that he would stand by him in refusing to allow the Missouri men to vote.

When the polls were opened, the first man who presented himself was a Missourian. Judge ABBOTT asked him if he lived in the Territory:—he said he did. He asked him if he intended to make that his permanent home:—he replied he didn't know whether he should or not.

He asked him if he was going back to Missouri:—he said he should—the next day.

Judge ABBOTT refused to allow him to vote; and CAMERON said he thought he couldn't vote, but he would like to ask him a question. "Can you swear," said he, "that you are a bona fide resident?" "Yes, Sir," was the answer, "I can." "Then," said Judge CAMERON, "I think he must vote;" and Judge CUMMINGS agreed with him. So he voted.

The next man that came up was one YOUNG, who said he was the captain of the company, and if he could vote, he guessed they all could. So he went through the same farce,—declaring, in reply to some of Judge ABBOTT's questions, that if anybody doubted his word he would kill him,—and swearing that he was a "bona fide resident of the Territory." Judges CAMERON and CUMMINGS allowed him to vote;—Judge ABBOTT resigned his seat;—a Pro-Slavery man was put in his place,—and then the whole Missouri regiment voted, one after the other.

The next day they struck their tents,—got up their teams, and went back to Missouri. The same thing was done all along the border. And the men elected by that process are making what are called laws for the government of the people of the Territory!

Prospects for the Week—General Theatrical Review.

The triumph of Mlle. RACHEL may now be said to be complete. The solons of the Weekly and Sunday press have delivered their verdicts, and the RACHEL office in Wall-street is secure. One paper has yet to be heard from, (the Dispatch.) A critic will be sent this week to the Metropolitan Theatre in the interest of that paper, who will settle what remains to be settled, and perhaps put a new complexion on things in general. The dignified case of the Dispatch is impressive.

We will take a hasty glance at the opinions of our contemporaries. The Albion comes out with a new critic, engaged expressly for the occasion, who describes himself as a "citizen of the parquette"—having his "papers" from Wall-street, we presume—and signs himself "Hamilton." He gather from this gentlemen's "stunning" article that if we feel Mlle. RACHEL's power, "if we hang upon her lips, and bow before the tempest of her passionate declamation, the emotions which we experience are truly esthetic emotions, and her triumph a pure triumph of dramatic art." Her reception so far may therefore be considered "a most brilliant and satisfactory omen for her career in America." The Sunday Times goes to the point at once, and declares that "each representation has served to confirm the belief that she is the greatest actress that has ever lived." The Sunday Mercury says of the Monday's performance, "had we never seen RACHEL before, had she even come to us then unknown and unheralded, we should have confessed her power. According to the conventional acceptance of the term, it was no actress we looked upon—it was a woman feeling greatly and on the eve of saying what she felt." The Sunday Courier asserts that Mlle. RACHEL "has established herself on a permanent pedestal in the estimation of New-York."

Against the above commendatory notices we find in the Atlas one conceived in a different spirit. RACHEL is not, according to this authority, "superior to any of the ladies who 'star it' every year at our principal theatres!"

So you see, even the Sunday Press don't always agree. The object of this varied criticism appears to-night in LEBRUN's adaptation of SCHILLER's "Maria Stuart," and during the week will appear some of her most famous characters, including Camille and Phèdre.

Mr. WALLACK has definitely announced that his theatre will open for the season on Thursday next, the 11th instant. Besides the standard comedies which have made the name of Mr. WALLACK famous, there will be produced, with more or less elaborate mise en scène, Mrs. WILLOW'S MOG, Mr. BYRNE'S VIRGINIA, Mr. HENRY PETERS, Mr. C. WALLACK, Mr. Clarence Stedman, Mr. MARSH BLAKE, Mr. Hopper, Mr. LEVERIDGE, Mr. BARRYMORE and Mr. LYNDEN TEMPLE, are expected. Signor LA MANNA will return to his old post in the Orchestra. Some changes have taken place in the policy of the management. Instead of making old or new English Comedies the leading characteristic of the drama, Mr. WALLACK has determined to bring out a quick succession of novelties. The season opens with a New Comedy from the pen of that indefatigable dramatist, Mr. JOHN BROUGHAM. Other novelties will follow, including some burlesques such as MITCHELL used to play at the old Olympic. Every one will wish well to Mr. WALLACK and his handsome little theatre. There can be no more doubt of a prosperous campaign.

Mr. BURTON seems to have produced a new comedy to-night, but, with his accustomed courtesy, he has deferred doing so until next Wednesday, in order, it is presumed, that he may offer a delicate mark of respect to Mr. WALLACK, who opens on that night. It is, of course, nothing to us how Mr. BURTON manages his business, but it does seem as if bringing a premiere with the public was altogether a secondary object to running an opposition to Mr. WALLACK. Instead of the new comedy, we are to have MACREADY'S old card to-night, "A New Way to Pay Old Debts," followed by BOUCICAULT'S extravaganza, called "Adventures in Russia."

At the Broadway theatre, the RAVELS will terminate their highly successful engagement on Saturday next. Monday following, the regular season will commence. Mr. MARSHALL intends relying on his Stock Company more than heretofore, and he is, we think, wise in doing so. There are, of course, some "stars" that continue to attract remunerative audiences, but as a rule, their rays are too feable to benefit the treasury to a sufficient extent. A good Stock Company would be a greater attraction. No theatre in America has better facilities for bringing out novelties in a superior manner than the Broadway. The Company appears to be a strong one, and to nearly strengthen now; we give a list:

Messrs. W. R. Blake, Fisher, Lanergan, Chapman, Fenno, Stynge, Grosvenor, Whiting, Cason, Seymour, Sanford, Cutter, Hodges, N. B. Clarke, Henry Aiton, Walters, Vincent, Harcourt and Wright; Miss Emma Hardinge, from the Theatre Royal, Haymarket, London; Miss Josephine Manners, from the Theatre Royal, Liverpool; Madame Postel, Mrs. Blake, Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Seymour, Mrs. Nagle, Mrs. Warren, Misses Osborne, Richardson, Duckworth, Herbert, Williams, &c.

In the way of music, we learn that the opera of "Rip Van Winkle" will be produced on Monday next at Niblo's Garden. During the present week, the PYNE and HARRISON Troupe will give several performances of old and favorite operas. On Tuesday, (to-morrow,) Miss LOUISA PYNE takes her benefit. It is, we are sure, an occasion that will draw forth a kindly remembrance from the many admirers of this admirable vocalist. Mlle. THERESA PARODI holds her own in spite of RACHEL and every one else. She has already given three concerts with signal success, and announces her fourth for to-morrow night. We have before commented that the programmes of these excellent entertainments are arranged with great skill, and are precisely the kind suited for a mixed Summer audience. Go where they will, PARODI, STRAKOSCH and his clever wife (when we are happy to say, has recovered from her recent indisposition) deserve, and meet with, the caution of the musical public. Everyone remembers the beautiful contralto of the Academy of Music SIGNORINA VESTVALI. This fascinating contralto announces a grand farewell concert for Wednesday evening, at Niblo's Saloon. She is going to take the city of Mexico by storm this Winter, preferring the sunny atmosphere of that capital to the more frigid climate of our own. We shall take another opportunity of directing attentions to the programme. Concerning the Academy of Music, we learn nothing of a positive nature, except that a superb orchestra has been engaged, and that MAX MARETZEK will again be conductor. The first of October is mentioned as the opening night, and MAYERBEER'S Robert le Diable is said to be the first attraction in preparation. We should not be surprised, however, if the season commenced a little earlier than originally intended. A portion of the company, (including LA GRANGE, BRIGNOLI, ANGIOLINI and others,) has been concerting, and with such unsuccess, that a metropolitan gathering of the forces, for immediate operations, may be looked for at any moment.

In the way of miscellaneous entertainments, we refer our readers to the advertisements of BARNUM'S Museum, SMITH'S Tour of Europe, Dusseldorf Gallery, CHRISTY & WOOD'S Minstrels, BUCKLEY'S do., the Mammoth Tree of California,—a great natural curiosity. And, for the benefit of our Brooklyn readers, we direct attention to the Concerts of Mlle. PARODI, the Brothers MULLENHAUPT, and the original CHRISTY'S Minstrels. Nine years' hard work at the old stand in Broadway entitle the latter to crowded audiences tonight and to-morrow night at the Athenæum.

NEW HALL IN CINCINNATI.—A new and beautiful music and lecture hall has just been erected in Cincinnati, and was dedicated on Tuesday evening last, under the auspices of the Mercantile Library Association. The Lecture Committee of that Institution has made arrangements for dramatic and miscellaneous readings by Mr. JAMES E. MURDOCH on the first evening, and for lectures by OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES, on the three evenings following. We learn from the Cincinnati Gazette that two thousand persons were present on the opening night. Mr. MURDOCH, after reading several selections said: "There are times when my nervous irritability overcomes my memory. Accustomed as I have been to facing audiences in fictitious characters, yet this scene comes too near home to me; and although I would not venture to say I am frightened, yet I feel exceedingly nervous." He then proceeded to another reading—"Hotspur's Account of the Fop." His rendering of "And but for those vile guns he would have been himself a soldier," was inimitable. A moment after he stopped again, and said, "Ladies and gentlemen, I am compelled to suspend this reading by a nervous irritability which affects my memory." Two physicians were called, and Mr. MURDOCH did not feel that he could go on. The audience were requested to wait, and a Committee called upon Dr. HOLMES, who had just arrived in the city, and requested him to deliver an extra lecture, which he consented to do, and proceeded to read his lecture on BYRON and MOORE. The subjects announced for his other lectures are—"Lectures and Lectures," "Physical Life in New-England," and "The Poetry of KEATS."

CITY MUSEUM.—The Museum opened for the Fall and Winter season last evening. During the recess the building has undergone considerable change and enlargement, and is now capable of seating several hundred more persons. Mr. T. D. JERMYN assumes the managerial sceptre, which he will no doubt wield ably. Mr. J. is not unknown to the play-goers of Philadelphia. He has been regarded as one of the best comedians in the country. Mr. WORRELL and Mr. HERPLE remain. The company, however, is made up of ladies and gentlemen new to the Philadelphia public.

[Philadelphia paper of Sunday.

THE BOSTON THEATRE.—This establishment opens for the season to-night. The interior has been considerably improved since the theatre was closed. The walls have been newly painted and repapered, the lobbies have new carpets, two additional aisles have been made to the parquette, two new avenues have been added to the entrances to the balcony and first tier of boxes, and a great addition made to the arrangements for lighting the house. "Much Ado About Nothing" will be performed on the occasion. Mr. BELTON, the new comedian, will appear as Benedick, in the Beatrice of Mrs. BARROW.

Mr. and Mrs. BARNEY WILLIAMS have been playing at the Albany theatre during the past week. Mr. WILLIAMS has purchased a farce of Mr. GRATTAN for $200, entitled "Darby O'Donnell." It was one of the pieces written for the prize, but has no part for Mrs. WILLIAMS.

An unpublished opera of C. M. VON WEBER, called "Silvana," was recently performed for the first time, at Dresden. It was composed in 1808, and remodelled by the author in 1810-12.

Miss ELOISE BRIDGES is in the West.

CALIFORNIA RESUME.

METROPOLITAN.—The California stage received a brilliant acquisition in the persons of Miss JOSEPHINE and Miss ADELAINE GOUGENHEIM, who made their first appearance on the 9th instant, at the Metropolitan. The house was far better filled than the most sanguine friends of the Adventures could have anticipated. At the conclusion of each piece the youthful artistes were brought before the curtain by an hearty, and, we doubt not, an sincere applause, as has filled the walls of the Metropolitan for many a day.

The comedy of "Masks and Faces," in which they were supported by Mr. WEHYALLEN and a portion of the company, introduced them to the people of San Francisco, and the comedietta of "Ladies Beware" closed their first appearance. On the 10th, "The Love Chase," with JOSEPHINE as Constance, and ADELAINE as Lydia, was played, in connection with the farce of "The Good for Nothing," with JOSEPHINE as Nan. Miss JOSEPHINE'S Constance surprised and gratified all, and in every point was by far the best rendition of the character we have had on our boards. (The writer probably means female.) On the 11th, "The Jealous Wife" and "Perdition" were performed with great success, JOSEPHINE as Mrs. Oakley, and ADELAINE as Harriet Rosser, in the former play, and ADELAINE as Kate O'Brien, and JOSEPHINE as Susan, in the latter. The comedy was repeated on the 12th, in connection with the farce of the "Windmill;" and on the 14th, "Masks and Faces" was repeated. On the 15th they appeared in the extravaganza of Damon, the Slave of Love, in connection with the farce of "Ladies Beware." On the 17th, Miss ADELAINE took her benefit, selecting the new play of "The Comet and the Star," and the farce of "Female Sharpers," and JOSEPHINE as young Rosser in Female Sharpers, and JOSEPHINE as Nell Gwynne, and acquitted themselves with marked

MOUNT WASHINGTON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, No. 618 4th st., on Washington-square (entrance No. 102 Macdougal-st.) CLARKE & FANNING, Principals, commence the thirteenth academic year on MONDAY, the 10th of September. The Primary, Junior, Middle, and Senior Departments occupy three stories of the building owned by the Principals for those of this Institution. The rooms for recreation are large, pleasant and numerous. The school-rooms are of a character and proportion to the number (250); and the instruction provided is in the proportion of about one pupil to the teacher. They are allowed daily access to the open air of the Park, and instructed by able Professors in all the branches required for business or College, including a knowledge of natural science, French, German and Spanish, commercial arithmetic and book-keeping, civil engineering and surveying; together with the art of drawing and painting. The Juvenile Classes are under the special tuition and care of one of the Principals. New pupils receive private and individual instruction when necessary to fit them for entering to advantage the classes of which they are to be members.

Several interviews with the Principals, and catalogues containing the names of pupils, plans of instruction, regulations, terms, &c., may be had at the rooms of the Institute. Catalogues may also be obtained at APPLETON'S Bookstore, Broadway; also at IVISON & PHINNEY'S, 138 Pearl-st., New-York.

A. DODWORTH'S DANCING ACADEMIES.

New-York, No. 806 Broadway, opposite 11th-st.
Brooklyn, No. 137 Montague-place, near Court-st.

MR. DODWORTH has the honor of announcing that the classes and lesson will commence for the season at the New-York Academy on SATURDAY, Oct. 6; at the Brooklyn Academy on MONDAY, Oct. 8. Circulars containing terms, &c., can be obtained at either of the Academies.

Mr. DODWORTH has the pleasure of informing his friends that agreeable to their repeated solicitations to establish a dancing academy in Brooklyn, on the plan so successful in New-York, he has erected a spacious building, combining every convenience that could be suggested by many years' experience, and in every way adapted to the healthful exercise to which it will be devoted. The location is one of the most accessible in Brooklyn. The Court-st., Fulton and Myrtle-av. Railroads meeting at the head of Montague-place, but a few steps from the Academy.

THE CLASSICAL GYMNASIUM—Bible House, Astor-place. J. F. BINGHAM, Rector, will open the exercises of the fourth year on Monday, Sept. 24. The Gymnasium is a Day High School of the first class, divided into two departments, and receiving buttoned boys each. The studies begin with the simplest elements and embrace the most important English studies, a course of Mathematics, French, Latin, Greek, Drawing, Painting and Music. Entrance at Arms. The whole course, the details of which have been arranged with great care, and to which the special attention of parents is invited, occupies six years, but pupils may begin in any class for which they are fitted. The school-rooms are thought to have quite unusual provision for the comfort and health of the pupils. THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION.

By Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Professor of Diseases of Women, One Hundred Editions. (Old edit.) Price, $1. [On the paper, extra 25c. Price $1.]

Every woman can have a copy, by enclosing her own address with these described, the nature, character and cause of her complaint, and be cured much sooner and more cheaply than by employing a medical man. Her case will have full, plain and practical advice in regard to her situation, which she will have full. This book tells her what is the matter, and tells her what to do for it, in simple but chaste language.

Those suffering from obstructions or irregularities peculiar to the female system, or from prolapsus uteri, (falling of the womb), or from fluor albus, will weak, and in the pages treatment of a letter from a gentleman in Dayton, Ohio:

DAYTON, May 1, 1855.

Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU—My Dear Sir: My wife has been persuadably suffering for more than three years or more, in consequence of great exposure and suffering some months before your doctor's consultation, every consecutive two years, and more debilitated and prostrated her, putting her life in imminent danger, and which was on the last occasion dangerous in the extreme. I was induced to place your book in her hands, and yourself to meet the worst. I heard your book in daily question of, as containing some matters touching my case. On inspection and perusal I cannot express to you the relief it afforded my distressed mind, and the joy it caused my wife. Her case was such, I believe, that the Mr. Dr. Dorchester provided a remedy. It caused a great deal of pain to me which I little conceived was possible. But for this, one another year would have passed over my head, in the same, and my children left motherless. Yours, &c.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.—McKENNEDY, of Roxbury, has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds, a remedy that cures every kind of humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over 1,200 cases, and never failed, except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over 300 certificates of its virtue, all within 20 miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.

One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples on the face.

Two to three bottles will clear the system of boils.

Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth or stomach.

Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of scrofula.

One to two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.

Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the eyes and blotches among the hair.

Two to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers.

One bottle will cure scaly eruption of the skin.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of ringworm.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the salt rheum.

Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.

A remedy is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Reader, I peddled over a thousand bottles of this in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case. To prove its water will extinguish fire, on sure will this cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that sold another after a fair trial, it always speaks for itself. There are two things about this herb that appears to me surprising—first, that it grows in our pastures, in same places quite plentiful, and yet its value has never been known until I discovered it in 1852; second, that it should cure all kinds of humor.

In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, 1853, I sold 18, and sold about two bottles per day. In April, 1854, I sold over a thousand bottles per day.

No change of diet over necessary—eat the best you can get, and enough of it.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.—Adults, one table spoonful per day; children over 8 years, dessert spoonful; children from 1 to 8 years, tea spoonful. As the direction can be applicable to all constitutions, take sufficient to operate on the bowels twice a day.

Mr. KENNEDY gives personal attendance in bad cases of Scrofula.

Resolution to Adjourn.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—Sept. 9, 1855.

Judge HALE has sent down his decisions in the following cases, argued before him in July last in this District:

SALVAGE—INTERVENTION—ATTACHMENT.

Charles B. Sandford et. al. vs. The Ship Underwriter.—This libel was filed by the master and owners of the steamer Delaware, for themselves and all others interested, to recover compensation for alleged salvage services to the ship Underwriter in the month of April, 1855. The Delaware was a steamer running between New-York and Philadelphia, and while on a trip to Philadelphia, discovered the Underwriter stranded on a bar off Squan Beach, New Jersey, and went to her assistance. The libellants allege that they lay by the Underwriter for the period of 21 hours, and until a steamer arrived from New-York, which had been sent for, running great risk of loss, and actually injuring the Delaware by straining her; losing their trip and losing one of their men, who was drowned by the capsizing of the small boat while communicating between the two vessels, and getting their boat, &c., and in various other ways; and having rendered service to the Underwriter by remaining by her, and getting lines to her, and in other ways, for all of which they claimed to be entitled to salvage.

The respondents, on the other hand, denied that the Delaware was requested to do what she did, or that the was of any assistance to the Underwriter, or that her services were salvage services at all.

It was admitted on the trial that the Delaware was worth $60,000, and her cargo $80,000, and that the Underwriter, after she was got off and repaired, would have sold for $56,000, and that an offer had been made to the libellants of $1,500.

Per Curiam.—A decree will be entered for the libellants, allowing to the owners of the Delaware, or such, for the risk of, and the actual injury to, their vessel; for her detention and services; for their small boat given as a reward to those who picked up the crew; and for the amount paid for the funeral expenses of the member of the boat's crew who was drowned, the sum of five thousand dollars; and the further sum of $800 to the master and mate of the Delaware, and such other persons as formed part of the crew of the small boat while the endeavors to communicate with the Underwriter were being made—the said sum of $800 to be divided as follows, viz.

To the master of the Delaware	$150 00
To the mate of the Delaware	150 00
And the remaining	500 00

to be divided between the representatives of Barney Leland and other persons so composing the boat's crew, so that such representatives and also such persons as were in said small boat during the whole time such boat was engaged in endeavoring to establish a communication with the Underwriter shall receive at the rate of $3 each, while those who were part of such boat's crew on only one of the occasions when such efforts were made by such boat's crew, shall receive $2 each; and that the libellants recover their costs.

For libellants, Messrs. Beebe and Donohue; for respondents, Messrs. Marvin and Smith.

Letter to General John H. Cocke, of Va.

SIR: You are a corporate member of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and will, I suppose, be present at the annual meeting, to be held at Utica, New-York, on the 11th instant, agreeably to your usual custom. You are a slave-holder. A gentleman in this State, who was long been acquainted with you, informs me that you and your son-in-law hold, at the present time, at least one thousand slaves! There was a time when, unless I am greatly misinformed, you wept and prayed over the subject, and was anxiously inquiring what duty required of you in the premises. It is possible that, since you took an active part in procuring the passage of the Nebraska and Kansas bill, and since the defeats of the "institution" by Rev. Dr. ADAMS, of Boston, who is associated with you in the American Board—being also a member of the Prudential Committee, and somewhat before the Board this year—your compunctious times ceased. It may be that you now think it quite consistent in you to be a commissioner to promote a system of slavery in foreign countries, and among the Choctaws and Cherokee Indians, on this side Texas, in the Indian Territory, and wherever else you may have your eye upon, while you, with your brethren, hold your own thousand men, women and children in this State, who are held of their natural rights! Yes, there are no excuses the boys that [illegible] Free State, into a community that has never, there, yet, an abolitionist of Slavery, sympathized with many of the most talented and influential ministers and laymen in New-England, New-York, &c.; you may be brought to see the great inconsistency of your conduct, and to feel, as you have mostly been led to feel, on former occasions, to remonstrate those whom you hold in bondage, and thus afford a high example of Christian consistency, that may cause the apologists of Slavery in the Free States to blush, while it induces Christian gentlemen at the South to imitate your example.

Respectfully yours,

LEWIS TAPPAN.

TO THOSE WHO DRINK AT BARS AND HOTELS.

As a number of persons who keep bar-rooms and hotels are in the habit of filling my empty bottles with their mixed and poisoning gin, and selling it for my "Schiedam Aromatic Schnapps," I would advise all who drink at such places, to mark the appearance of the bottle, and if the wrapper or label should be defaced, require the barkeeper to open a fresh bottle, which is the only way to guard against such fraud.

MONDAY, Sept. 10—A. M.

The course of the Money and Stock movement in Wall-street the past week, was rather steady than otherwise. The advance in the rates of interest to 7 ⅌ cent. on demand and for short paper, and 8@9 ⅌ cent. outside of Bank, on 3 to 6 months' bills, is fully established. The change, however, appears to have induced a corresponding disposition on the part of outside lenders to add to their demand loans, and confidence in the healthy and prosperous action of the Fall trade is wholly unmoved either by the rise of interest or the declining Specie averages of the Banks—the last being just now qualified by fresh receipts from California and a good supply of Foreign Bills. The operations in Stocks during the week were quite moderate in State and Railroad Bonds, the demand for Europe being, for the moment, checked, and the home speculation too weak to fully sustain the late advance in prices; though the variations scarcely exceed the accruing interest. In Road and Nicaragua Transit Shares there was more disposition to speculate, and the sales through the week were large, particularly in Erie and Reading, which show, on the closing sales, an improvement of 1¼@1½ ⅌ cent. The sales of Erie on Saturday were 8,500 Shares, opening 53¾ and closing 55¾. The cash sales at the Second Board were very heavy at 53½ ⅌ cent. The general market closed somewhat unsettled. Illinois Central Bonds were done as low as 85 ⅌ cent. The August receipts of the Road are $145,300. There was a rise of ¼ ⅌ cent. in Galena and Chicago Shares on the heavy August receipts of the Road, the particulars of which, compared with August, 1854, are:

	1854. 180 miles.	1855. 251 miles.
Freight	$60,034 15	$141,582 87
Passengers	33,641 79	62,090 56
Mails, &c.	1,456 13	2,201 94
Total	$104,132 07	$205,861 37

The Foreign Import Trade of this port during the past week, including the Dry Goods table in our last paper, amounted to $3,772,320, against $3,632,677 the corresponding week last year. For the calendar year to the present date the total imports into New-York, reckoned by our semi-official weekly returns, is $193,097,000, against $137,636,000 to same date in 1854. The export of Domestic Produce and Miscellaneous goods during the week amounted to $1,238,228, against $1,211,120, the corresponding week last year. For the calendar year to the present time the total export, exclusive of Specie, from New-York is $40,126,000, against $25,403,000 to same date in 1854. The Specie export from New-York during the week, including $480,000 by the Hermann on Saturday, is $860,542, against $1,463,000 the same week last year. For the calendar year to the present date the total direct export of Specie from New-York is $23,168,000, against $26,210,000. From Boston, owing to the withdrawal of the Cunard steamers from this port, the Specie shipments for the calendar year to the close of August are made $11,382,000, against $4,747,000 to corresponding time in 1854. Most, if not all the increased movement was from this City: so that, taking both ports together, the remittances to Europe in Specie, thus far in 1855, amount to $34,550,000, against $30,957,000 to same date in 1854. The deliveries of Californian Gold at New-York last week were $1,005,597, and the total, thus far in 1855, is $25,558,077, against $34,104,480 to same date in 1854. The Sub-Treasury balance on Saturday afternoon was $5,518,901, against $5,462,069 at the close of the previous week. In addition to the regular export of Specie during the week, $250,000 in Gold went to Canada; and as the California receipts were not in season to help the Bank Averages, it is probable the weekly statement to be made up this afternoon will show a further reduction in the aggregate reserve, which stood last week $12,852,693.

The movement of Flour, it will be noticed, is already beginning to tell on the Export table, and Indian Corn continues in large demand for shipment. The receipts of new Wheat are as yet too limited to bring either supply or prices within European orders, to any considerable extent.

Mr. L. HOWLAND, of HOWLAND, ALLEN & Co., is mentioned as the President of the Import Bank, in place of Mr. [illegible], who is hereafter to be the President of the Bank of Commerce.

Two failures during the week are announced in the Dry Goods Jobbing Trade, growing out of the embarrassment of last season, and the consequent crippled credit of the houses in making fresh purchases. The liabilities are not stated.

The following is a comparative statement of the exports of the principal articles of domestic produce for the week just closed, and the corresponding week last year:

	1855. Quantity.	1855. Value.	1854. Quantity.	1854. Value.
Cotton, bales	7,425	$690,111	3,575	$320,616
Flour, bbls	8,026	71,063	18,469	102,149
C Meal, unbagged	716	3,181	200	1,178
Wheat, bush			2,000	11,400
Corn, bush	86,187	58,028	158,100	105,600

Beef, bbls. & tcs.	435	7,676	309	4,054
Total produce		$849,617		$675,056
Miscellaneous		771,703		556,164
Total for the week		$1,611,120		$1,231,220

The California arrival on Saturday, via Nicaragua, brought $1,005,000 in Gold and a satisfactory private mail in regard to money affairs at San Francisco and the production of Gold in the interior. Although we are $8 546,000 behind the receipts of Gold Dust in 1854 at this port, owing to the interruption in February, March and part of April, by the suspension among the bankers, the actual production of the State in 1855 is believed to be fully equal to that of any preceding year. The Branch Mint, not in operation last year, is now coining and sending back into the interior a large amount of Gold, in small coin.

The Anthracite Coal Trade from the Schuylkill and Lehigh for the past week, and for the season, is as follows:

	Week.	1855.	To date 1854.
Reading Road	59,806	1,641,259	1,468,149
